TO RETIRE 450 MEN AS WARRANT OFFICERS

Former Holders of U.S. Army
Commissions Affected by Bill

MEASURE IS RETROACTIVE

IT is estimated that about 450 enlisted men of the Army alone will be affected by Sec. 8 of the bill (S. 2169) providing that enlisted men who served as commissioned officers in the World War shall retire as warrant officers. The bill became a law on June 6, 1924, when it was approved by the President. By reading the section it will be apparent that it is retroactive and affects the enlisted men who are now on the retired list. The section referred to provides—

"That retired enlisted men of the Army heretofore or hereafter retired who served honorably as commissioned officers of the Army of the United States at some time between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, shall be entitled to receive the pay of retired warrant officers of the Army; and retired enlisted men of the Regular Navy and Marine Corps heretofore or hereafter retired who served honorably as commissioned officers, regular, temporary or reserve, and who at the time of their retirement were members of the Regular Navy or Marine Corps, shall be entitled to receive the pay of retired warrant officers of the Navy and Marine Corps, respectively; provided, that such enlisted man retired prior to July 1, 1922, shall be entitled to receive the pay provided by law for retired warrant officers of equal length of service retired prior to that date, and that any such enlisted man retired subsequent to June 30, 1922, shall be entitled to receive the pay provided by law for retired warrant officers of equal length of service retired subsequent to that date; provided further, that nothing in his act shall operate to prevent any person from receiving the pay and allowances of his grade, rank, or rating on the retired list when such pay and allowances exceed the pay to which he would be entitled under this act by virtue of his commissioned service.

"Sec. 9. Payments of commutation for additional ration provided for certain non-commissioned officers by the act of May 18, 1920, and the act of June 4, 1920, made after July 1, 1922, to non-commissioned officers of the National Guard receiving pay under the provisions of Secs. 94, 97 and 99 of the National Defense act, as amended, and remaining uncollected, are hereby authorized to be credited in the disbursing officers' accounts in which they now appear."

MRS. COOLIDGE AWARDS C.M.T.C. ESSAY PRIZES

THE national winners in the Women's Overseas Service League's essay contest on the subject, "Why a Young Man I Know Should Attend a Citizens' Military Training Camp," were awarded prizes on June 14 at the Flag Day ceremonies by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. The lucky girls were Miss Adele Daniel, 17, Vicksburg, Miss., platinum wrist watch; Miss Luella Lancaster, 18, Junction City, Kas., platinum brooch, and Miss Dorothy M. Beal, 17, Frederick Hall, Va., gold bracelet. The Secretary of War congratulated them.

RENTAL ALLOWANCE REGULATIONS ARE BEING PREPARED BY ALL THE SERVICES AFFECTED

TO carry out the provisions of Section 6 of the Act of June 10, 1922, amended by Section 2 of the Act of May 31, 1924, on the subject of rental allowances, the headquarters of all the Services affected by this provision are now engaged in the preparation of a regulation which will be submitted to the President for approval. The act is retroactive to July 1, 1922, so that the regulation the President may publish will be binding clear back to July of 1922. If any differences arise among the Services, they will be harmonized in a joint meeting to arrive at an interpretation of the regulations.

When all subjects of discussion have been ironed out, the regulation will be sent to the President for approval, and he will publish the regulation in the form of an executive order. When this has been done, the regulation will be issued to all of the Services. It has been requested that officers affected by this act refrain from writing to the Department, as it only creates unnecessary correspondence. Upon the completion of the procedure outlined above, the Service will be notified immediately as to the correct manner to pursue in recovering the claims of officers affected by the provisions of this act.

GENERAL STAFF ASSIGNING N.C.O. INCREASE TO BRANCHES OF ARMY

IT is expected that the general order providing for the distribution of the additional non-commissioned officers under the amendment of the National Defense act, approved June 6, 1924, will be published about July 1. In a tentative form the order has been written by a committee of the General Staff. This committee is now conducting what amounts to a hearing at which the chiefs of branches or their representatives are appearing. Naturally, each branch insists that it is in greater need for additional non-coms. than any other parts of the Army. In a general way it is stated that the largest part of the increase will go to the detached enlisted men's list for duty with the National Guard, colleges and the Organized Reserves. At the same time the Regular organizations are to receive a substantial increase.

The net increase in the non-commissioned grades will be 1,987. Of this increase 237 are for the first grade or master sergeants. The second grade, or technical sergeants and first sergeants, will receive an increase of 375, and the third grade, or staff sergeants, an increase of 1,750. There will be a reduction of 375 in the fourth grade, or sergeants. There will also be a decrease of 500 in the number of enlisted men with specialist ratings. This will be due to the fact that the increase in the number of non-coms. decreases the number of enlisted men in the sixth and seventh grades. The number of enlisted men with specialist ratings under the law is based on the number of enlisted men in the 6th and 7th grades.

After a thorough study made in the War Department relative to the distribution of the increase of 1,987 non-commissioned officers authorized by the recently enacted amendment to the National Defense Act, a tentative allowance table has been prepared in the Department indicating the increases allocated to the various arms. The figures which are given below are tentative and in all cases indicate the increases in the branches of the Service concerned:

Field Artillery—Master sergeants, 18; technical sergeants, 9; staff sergeants, 53.
Signal Corps—Master sergeants, 13; technical sergeants, 11; staff sergeants, 20.

NAVAL RESERVE TRAINING PROGRAM

THE Navy Department has approved of quite an extended cruise for the Utah, which will take out the Naval Reserves from the 1st, 5th and 6th Naval Districts for a summer's cruise. The Utah will be kept busy all summer on this duty and it will be one of the most interesting programs of the season.

According to the schedule, the Reservists of the 1st District will embark at Boston on July 15 on the Utah and cruise on Narragansett Bay, returning to Boston on July 29. The Utah will then go to Charleston, S.C., where she will take aboard Reservists for the 6th District and cruise north to Narragansett Bay, returning to Charleston on Aug. 14. From there she will sail to Hampton Roads, where she will take on the Naval Reserves of the 5th District for their training period.

CHANGES AMONG HIGH OFFICERS OF NAVY

REAR ADM. C. F. HUGHES, U.S.N., has been ordered transferred from the Navy War College to the office, Chief of Naval Operations. It is stated that he will be assigned to the training section in the office, Chief of Naval Operations.

Capt. J. M. Enoch, U.S.N., has been relieved from the U.S.S. Chaumont. He will be succeeded by Capt. F. L. Oliver, now on duty in the Bureau of Engineering.

Capt. A. W. Marshall, U.S.N., who was relieved some time ago from the command of Air Squadron on the Pacific, has arrived in Washington, reporting to the Chief of Naval Operations. Capt. Marshall will relieve Capt. Chauncey Shackford as director of target practice, while the latter will go to sea on the Marblehead.

MISSISSIPPI TURRET EXPLOSION KILLS 48

Traditional Navy Heroism Is Shown When Blast Takes Terrible Toll

TWELVE INJURED SAVED

THE premature explosion of powder bags of two right 14-inch guns in turret No. 2 of the U.S. battleship Mississippi, Capt. William D. Brotherton, June 12, during target practice off San Clemente, Calif., resulted, according to the official casualty list, in three officers and forty-five men being killed and twelve men injured. It was among the worst gun accidents in the history of the Navy, but it also resulted in that time-honored display of heroism in the performance of duty in which the history of our Navy is replete.

Although the official report of the court of inquiry had not been made public at this writing, judging from some of the testimony given before it, the accident, it would seem, was probably due to insufficient air pressure in cleaning the bore of the guns after the previous charge was fired.

When the flare-back occurred eight of twelve scheduled salvos had been fired. Then when the next charge was inserted there were two terrific explosions from the breech of the guns and the turret became an inferno.

HEROIC EFFORTS TO RESCUE

Four men in the turret leaped through hatches to safety. All others in the turret were suffocated in the atmosphere of flame and poisonous fumes.

For half an hour every flame extinguishing agency on board was directed toward quelling the burning gases and the flaming oil drip of the gun operating machinery. The magazines were at once flooded.

The hatches were choked with dead, and only water hose at first could be forced through the entrances.

Then came Ens. H. D. Smith, who headed volunteers to enter the death turret. He was chosen because of his small stature.

With gas mask and air hose he forced his way through the piled-up bodies and braving an inferno of gas and flames inspected the turret and reported no survivors. Then he went back and brought out the first bodies.

Heroic efforts to save the lives of the men in turret No. 2 as the flames burst out had been made by Lt. Thomas E. Zellars, one of the three officers lost in the explosion.

When rescuing parties entered the turret they found the limp hand of Lt. Zellars still resting on the sprinkler controls which were partly opened—mute evidence of his effort to avert the disaster by flooding the turret. The latter was jammed tight by the heat that accompanied the explosion. A remaining charge in a 14-inch gun that fortunately was not set off by the fire was successfully removed on June 13.

LIKE MATCH TO CELLULOID

Boatswain R. J. Macavin, who was one of the few who escaped from the turret, in speaking of the explosion to the Associated Press, said:

"There was an explosion like a match being touched to a pile of celluloid, just a puff, then a little flame, then a bigger one that filled the turret like a continuous streak of lightning, accompanied by hot, suffocating smoke.

"The big guns had been fired and a shell had just been taken out of the gun in the third compartment. Along the wall were empty powder sacks. I noticed a 450-pound sack in the corner nearest the gun carriage just before the trouble occurred.

"Realizing the danger, we jumped for the two hatches leading to the lower deck. Some of us were lucky—only a few though—for the fire ran all over the chamber and blocked the two passageways.

"We who escaped could hear the shouts of the boys pinned in the compartment. They were not burned to death, nor mangled by the explosion. They were, most of them, just suffocated."

COURT OF INQUIRY

Capt. Brotherton, commander of the Mississippi, testifying before the court of inquiry on June 13 that was at once ordered after the accident, said:

"I blame no one. All my men did their duty, every one. I have only the highest praise to offer."

There was praise, too, for the way men stuck to their posts after the nerve-shattering disaster, especially the engine and fire room forces down below.

Francis Majewski, one of the three men in the turret who escaped, gave the first definite evidence of what might have caused the explosion when he appeared before the court on June 14. He stated that poor air pressure used in blowing out the bore of the 14-inch guns after firing had been encountered all during the firing after the second salvo. Shortly before the eighth and fatal salvo, Majewski testified, the air pressure was so weak that in his position as plugman he was obliged to lend the weight of his shoulder to the breech, which is ordinarily closed by the air pressure.

Failure of sufficient air pressure to cleanse the barrel of fumes and gas, and possible residuum from the powder charge, makes subsequent ignition of the powder quite possible, it was pointed out.

Ens. Frank W. Parsons, who entered the turret with the third rescue party, said there had been a second explosion, three or four minutes after the first. The second, it is believed, caused most of the deaths.

Ens. Julian J. Levasseur in his testimony said that something noticeable had been the matter with one of the guns in turret No. 2. He was watching the hoisting of shells in the compartment directly below the firing chamber.

"On the third salvo I noticed the discharge of one gun was not as loud as the other two," he said. "It also was slower, coming, maybe, five seconds after the other two. I asked one of the men if the Mississippi was firing single guns. On the eighth salvo I heard a hissing noise in the room above and about a dozen men came tumbling down the hatch. One knocked me down. There were two bodies jammed in the hatchway. I leaped to the lower handling room. Three bags of powder were in the hoist. I saw that they were removed. The water was pouring down and when I left all the visible powder was out of the hoists."

INJURIES TO SHIP SLIGHT

Vice Adm. H. A. Wiley, commanding the battleship divisions, in a dispatch to the Navy Department on June 14, relative to the damage to the Mississippi said:

"Have pumped out flooded magazines and treatment and examination of wet powder as prescribed by ordnance instructions are being carried on. Material damage, as shown by examination up to this time, seems to be confined to the motors, heavier wiring, optical instruments and the instruments in turret No. 2.

"Damage to turret structure hardly worth considering. Believed two weeks of repairs by navy yard force is sufficient.

"While ship is at anchor in San Francisco Bay recommend that repairs be authorized to be made by working parties from Mare Island. Least disarrangement of schedule will be caused by this action. Also, her schedule at Monterey for Independence Day may possibly be met."

Sixteen Schools Send Students to First of Summer Camps Series

C.M.T.C. BEGINS IN JULY

THE first of the series of six camps to be held at Plattsburg Barracks this summer opened last Saturday when the college men's R.O.T.C. camp got under way. Its enrollment was fifty per cent. greater than 1923 and the outlook is that Plattsburg will have its busiest summer since 1917. Sixteen institutions are represented as follows: Cornell, Rutgers, Syracuse, Princeton, New York University, C.C.N.Y., Delaware, Princeton, University of Michigan, Clemson, Lafayette, New York Military Academy, Clason Military Academy, Bordentown Military Institute, St. John's, Manlius, Culver and Staunton. Students from those institutions outside the 2d Corps Area received special permission to attend Plattsburg.

Lt. Col. Staley A. Campbell, Inf. D.O. L. (N.Y.U.), is camp commander this year. The staff is as follows: Executive officer, Maj. H. D. Selson (Cornell); senior instructor, Maj. W. J. Morrissey (Syracuse); assistant, Capt. F. W. Rase (Syracuse); adjutant, Capt. C. T. Senay (Cornell); personnel adjutant, 1st Lt. I. K. Donnelly (N.Y.M.A.); budget, Maj. O. A. Manseau (Wenonah M.A.); recreation, 1st Lt. O. S. Rolfe (Rutgers); publicity, Lt. C. E. Lovejoy (Rutgers), and police, 1st Lt. Albert Pierson (Cornell).

The instructional staff is constituted as follows: Director of rifle marksmanship, Maj. W. S. Greacen (Rutgers); assistant, Capt. T. H. Cawthorne (C.C.N.Y.); combat principles, Capt. J. R. Eden (Cornell); musketry, Capt. W. P. Morse (Delaware); pistol marksmanship, Capt. A. J. Macnab (Syracuse); interior economy, etc., Capt. P. R. Knight (Clason); field engineering, Capt. Rase; athletics and ceremonies, 1st Lt. R. B. McClure (N.Y.M.A.); auxiliary weapons, Capt. J. P. Nolan (N.Y.U.); bayonet, Capt. Cawthorne; automatic rifle, Capt. O. R. Rhoads (Cornell); first aid, etc., Capt. R. M. Winfield (C.C.N.Y.).

Other officers on duty with the R.O.T.C. battalion are Capt. Roy Sparks (Delaware); 2d Lt. N. N. Jacobs (C.C.N.Y.); 1st Lt. W. F. H. Godson (Bordentown); and 1st Lt. Don Riley (Syracuse).

Five other camps and groups will be trained at Plattsburg this summer. The annual visit of the Army War College class is being made with Maj. Gen. H. E. Ely directing, and their tactical exercises in the Adirondacks will continue through the coming week. The first C.M.T. camp of 1,000 students will open July 1 and the second with 2,000 in camp on Aug. 1. On July 13 sixty-eight officers of the 305th Infantry, 77th Division, will report at Plattsburg for training and on Aug. 17 another group of fifty-one Reserve officers from the 389th Infantry of the 98th Division will come for two weeks instruction and training.

During the past week Brig. Gen. William S. Graves, commanding the 1st Division, made a three days' tactical inspection of the 26th Infantry. He was accompanied by Lt. Col. James A. Higgins, G-3, of the 2d Corps.

NATIONAL GUARD R.O. TO ATTEND 1924 CAMPS

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by the Militia Bureau of the War Department that sufficient funds are now available to accommodate as many officers of the National Guard Reserve at the 1924 fifteen-day encampments, beginning July 1, as may desire to avail themselves of this opportunity to secure field training. Authority is vested in each state adjutant general to approve all applications, providing that each officer or enlisted man be assigned to attend camp with the organization of his branch nearest to the individual's home station, except that in case the home station is nearer the camp than the station of the unit he will report at camp. It is pointed out by the bureau that the foregoing authority is limited to encampments included within the fiscal year 1925, beginning July 1, 1924, and ending June 30, 1925.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR CANDIDATES TO U.S.N.A.

REGULATIONS governing the admission of candidates to the U.S. Naval Academy as midshipmen for the class entering 1925 have just been promulgated by the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department. The regulations are divided into a number of sections as follows: Nomination, additional appointments, method of admission by examination, moral requirements, physical requirements, general disqualifications, special disqualifications, admission based on certificate, languages, and history, and definition of the subjects listed in the certificate.

Beginning with the class entering in 1925 the acceptance of a certificate will not admit a candidate without substantiation by an examination in mathematics and English. These substantiating examinations will be held on the third Wednesday in February and the third Wednesday in April of each year at the points enumerated on pages 4, 5 and 6 of the pamphlet to which points the candidate must proceed at his own expense when directed by the Bureau of Navigation. The papers will be forwarded to the Naval Academy immediately upon completion of examinations so that the successful candidate may be ordered to Annapolis not later than June 16. Candidates who pass the required examinations will receive appointments as midshipmen and be admitted as such to the Naval Academy.

EMPLOYMENT SCHEDULE FOR U.S.S. COLORADO

APPROVAL has been given by the Bureau of Naval Operations, Navy Department to the schedule of employment of the U.S.S. Colorado as follows:

July 10, leave navy yard, New York; and proceed to sea for short trial run; July 15, final trials; meet board of inspection and survey at Tompkinsville, N. Y., proceed to sea; July 16, arrive Hampton Roads; July 19, leave Hampton Roads; July 21, arrive off Bermuda for calibration of fire control instruments.

Aug. 9, leave for Hampton Roads; Aug. 11, arrive Hampton Roads; Aug. 16, arrive mouth of Potomac for calibration firing; Aug. 20, sail for Colon; Sept. 8, arrive San Francisco.

NEW FOURTH CLASS FORMED AT ANNAPOLIS

FORMATION of the new fourth class at the U.S. Naval Academy took place during the week with the arrival of candidates who had successfully passed the mental examinations for entrance to the Academy. This will be the smallest class in years, as Congress has reduced the appointments to such a point that only 250 midshipmen are expected. A final physical examination will be given each candidate, and those satisfying the Academy requirements will be sworn in as midshipmen.

During the next three months they will be instructed in the various drills and seamanship. Regular scholastic work will not begin until Oct. 1, at which time the three higher classes will return to Annapolis from their leave. The first, second and third classes, who are now on the annual practice cruise, are due back at Annapolis on Aug. 28, but they will go immediately on their annual leave.

FOUR WEDDINGS HELD IN U.S.M.A. CHAPEL

FOLLOWING the commencement exercises at the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y., on June 12, only four weddings were held in the chapel, instead of twelve, as announced in our issue of June 4. A number of other ceremonies were held in New York city on the same date.

THE CAVALRY SCHOOL

FORT RILEY, KAS.

THE night ride for the Junction City Chamber of Commerce Cup was held on the night of June 6-7. The conditions governing the ride were in the nature of a tactical problem, it being assumed that a Cavalry brigade was at Fort Riley with five reconnaissance detachments out to the north. Each contestant in the ride, of which there were eighty-four, was required to leave Fort Riley, check out at one of two outposts stationed at the pump house and the fire station, deliver a message to each of the reconnaissance detachments, check in at the other outpost and return to Fort Riley with a receipt from each reconnaissance detachment. The contestant was allowed to choose any route he desired. The shortest possible route over roads was about fifty miles. Each rider was given a small scale blue print map and a number of aerial photographs.

One reconnaissance detachment was near Alida, one near Milford, and three, within a few miles of each other, were south and southwest of Keat's postoffice. Each reconnaissance detachment had radio and telephone communication with the West Riding Hall, where the progress of each rider was shown on a large chart to an interested audience who stayed up all night and were served coffee and sandwiches. An officer at each station checked in the riders and examined the condition of the horses before they were allowed to proceed. The night was dark but fairly cool. One horse, Breakwater, was killed by falling into a ditch in the darkness and another had to be shot after nearly severing a front leg in a barbed wire fence. Three riders were hurt by piling up in the same ditch in which Breakwater's neck was broken.

The winner of the event was Capt. Stickman on Selim, who made the ride in 6 hours, 29 minutes and 36 seconds. Capt. Craig on Colonna was second, Capt. Seabury on Black Moon third and Capt. Fiske on Lulu fourth. Lt. Col. Carson, 57 years old, successfully completed the ride and returned to Fort Riley after having made every station.

The arrangements for the ride, which was particularly well organized, were made by Capt. Cheeves.

THE Standard Stakes, or Cavalry Pentathlon, was held on Monday morning, June 9.

In this event the contestants were started from the post laundry in pairs at half-minute intervals and proceeded on foot to their horses which were tied in the vicinity of the race track pasture. Here each contestant saddled his horse and raced over a course of eight solid jumps along the Republican river to the pistol range. Arriving at the pistol range, horses were turned over to grooms 100 yards in rear of the firing line and each contestant proceeded to the firing line, where he fired at a pint bottle set up at twenty-five yards distance until he broke it. He then mounted again and rode to the rifle range, where the conditions were the same as at the pistol range, except that the bottles were at 100 yards distance from the firing point.

On breaking his rifle target each contestant galloped to the river, where he crossed mounted at a point marked by flags, dropped a message in a barrel, turned over his horse and recrossed the river dismounted. The river was low and required no swimming at the marked crossings. Arriving at the near side of the river, the contestants raced on foot about 200 yards to the finish.

Disqualification resulted for any rider who failed to ride his own horse, failed to negotiate any obstacle, failed to break either pistol or rifle target, failed to deliver his message across the river mounted, or failed to return dismounted to the finish.

Capt. C. C. Smith, mounted on his private mare, Lady Thelma, won this event in a few seconds over 25 minutes. Capt. Washburn was second, Lt. Holbrook third and Capt. Seabury fourth. The assistant commandant, Col. Henry, finished seventeenth out of eighty-five starters.

THE Q.M. CORPS

THE names of three Quartermaster Corps officers, who will relieve the five officers who have been on duty with the American Graves Registration Service in Europe, were made public this week. A fourth officer will be selected in the near future to complete the commissioned personnel in charge of the overseas cemeteries. The three officers who have already been selected are: Lt. Col. William

O. Smith, Q.M.C.; Capt. Daniel J. Canty, Q.M.C., and Capt. Eugene J. Heller, Q.M.C. Col. Smith, who will relieve Maj. Henry L. Green, Q.M.C., as chief of the Registration Service, has been ordered home. Capt. Canty, motor transport officer, Washington depot, will sail for Europe on June 24 for duty at the Paris office. Capt. Heller is already in Paris.

A SERIES of conferences for all officers on duty in the Quartermaster General's office relative to the War Department's plans for mobilization in case of a major emergency, is being conducted by Lt. Col. William R. Gibson, Q.M.C.

In his talks to these conferences, Col. Gibson summarizes the two years of planning made in his office which, when completed, will give the Quartermaster Corps from 1,000 to 1,500 separate and complete plans embracing the various mobilization activities.

ORDNANCE NOTES

THE 3-inch A.A. gun carriage, model 1917 MI, for fixed position has been completed at Watertown Arsenal and shipped to the Aberdeen Proving Ground for test. The carriage is a modification of the 3-inch A.A. gun carriage, model 1917, now in the fortifications. It has been redesigned to modernize it. The modifications consisted principally of improving the elevating and traversing mechanisms, ease of loading, increase rate of fire and to provide a more satisfactory on-carriage fire control system. The shops tests indicate that the new mount should be satisfactory.

THE first 16-inch Barbette carriage, model 1919 MI, modified to mount the 16-inch Navy gun has been received at the Aberdeen Proving Ground for test. This carriage is similar in characteristics to the 16-inch Barbette carriage for mounting Army guns, except that the maximum elevation is 55 degrees instead of 65 degrees.

APPROVAL having been given for the purchase of one Vickers A.A. fire control gear, this instrument will be sent to the office, Chief of Ordnance, for examination. Upon the completion of the examination, it will be turned over to the Coast Artillery for use in connection with tests of various types of A.A. fire control instruments.

THE general drawings of the 37-mm., 3,000 f.s. A.A. gun have been completed in the Ordnance office, and will be presented to the technical staff for approval and authority to release manufacture.

MILITARY TRAINING CAMPS ASSOCIATION

GOVERNOR LOUIS F. HART of Washington has issued a stirring appeal to the young men of his state, urging them to enroll for the C.M.T.C. at Camp Lewis. The Chief Executive of practically all the states of the Union have given unqualified endorsement of the training camp movement and have contributed greatly to the exceptional success of enrollments during the current year.

THE 9th Corps Area stands at the head of the list in the percentage of enrollment compared with its original quota. California has done particularly well and an increased allotment of candidates has been asked of the War Department for Del Monte. Col. Ernest V. Smith, the chief of staff of the 91st Division, who will be camp commander and Mr. H. L. Suydam, civilian aid to the Secretary of War for California, have reason to be most satisfied with their enrollment work.

BRIG. GEN. ROY HOFFMAN, civilian aid for Oklahoma, reported on May 31 that his full quota for Fort Sill, had been filled and has later said that applications continue to pour into his office in Oklahoma City.

ACTIVE C.M.T.C. enrollment ceased for Indiana on June 8, but Col. Bowman Elder, state civilian aid, has already begun making his list of county representatives for 1925, with a view to even more successful work next year.

THE Military Training Camps Association has been asked by the War Department to use its organization for the success of National Defense Day on Sept. 12, especially by asking its county representatives to see that C.M.T.C. graduates participate everywhere in the local programs and parades.

If Ben Franklin could only come back—

It was 172 years ago that Franklin flew his kite and brought electricity down from the clouds. In these 172 years, humanity has made more scientific progress than in all the centuries before.

Think of Franklin's pleasure if he could only come back for one evening, to sit under a G-E MAZDA lamp, to watch a G-E locomotive pull a train, and to get the radio program from WGY or KGO, the G-E broadcasting stations.

Among the present-day successors of Benjamin Franklin are the scientists in the research laboratories of the General Electric Company. Their untiring experiments bring forth devices by which electricity does more and better work.

THE THREE "AGES" OF SHOEMAKING

For centuries and centuries the method of making footwear did not vary. A mural painting discovered in the ruins of ancient Thebes shows Egyptian sandal-makers at work after the manner of the early New England cobblers. Until a few generations ago boots and shoes were made entirely by hand, and wholly by the individual craftsman. This was the first "age" of shoemaking.

In the Eighteenth Century small domestic shoe-shops arose, and groups of men and women, in shops and homes, made the footwear of the people, the work being more or less divided, but all still done by hand. This was the second "age".

About the middle of the Nineteenth Century the factory system developed and the introduction of shoe machinery began, until to-day in no field of manufacture has greater progress been made or more efficiency been attained through machinery. This is the third "age".

There is a machine now available for practically every process in the making of shoes. And, by the way, there are one hundred and forty different operations in the making of a Goodyear Welt Shoe, universally recognized as without a peer in those qualities which make a shoe desirable,—comfort, durability, appearance.

NOTES FROM THE BATTLE FLEET

FORCE practice for ships of the Battle Fleet was held off the coast of California on June 11. All battleships now operating with the fleet and a large number of destroyers and aircraft took part. The weather conditions were excellent for a practice of this kind and all parts of the practice were conducted in a most expeditious manner. A large number of officers from other units of the fleet, with a considerable number of newspaper men and guests were present to witness the firing. Although the practice was held fifty miles from the coast, the newspapers reported the usual damage to property from San Diego to Santa Barbara.

THE schedule for ships visiting Puget Sound ports has been changed by ordering the U.S.S. Pennsylvania, flagship of Rear Adm. L. M. Nulton, to Seattle for the Fourth of July instead of to Tacoma. The original schedule detailed the U.S.S. Maryland and Colorado to Seattle, with the U.S.S. Pennsylvania, Oklahoma and Nevada to Tacoma, but, due to delays in completion of the work at the navy yard, New York, the U.S.S. Colorado will be unable to join the Battle Fleet until later in the year.

A change has also been made in the schedule by ordering both the U.S.S. Hull and U.S.S. Sumner to North Bend, Ore., for the Fourth of July. Originally one of these vessels was detailed to Marshfield, Ore., but as the Fourth of July celebration of these two cities is to be combined and held at North Bend, both vessels were ordered to the latter city.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made for taking a part of the aircraft squadrons, Battle Fleet, to Puget Sound ports with the fleet this summer. VO Squadron 1, consisting of ships planes, will be carried on the vessels of the fleet. Six land planes of VF Squadron 2, under command of Lt. Comdr. E. B. Chase, will fly to Seattle from San Diego, Calif., stopping at Santa Monica, Fresno, San Francisco, Red Bluff, Medford, Eugene and Portland. Six seaplanes of VS Squadron 2 will fly along the coast, stopping at San Luis, San Francisco, Eureka, Coos Bay, Astoria, Portland and Port Angeles. The planes from these two squadrons will base at Sand Point on Lake Washington, near Seattle, and will operate with the Battle Fleet during the stay in Puget Sound waters until Sept. 1.

The U.S.S. Arcostock, flagship of Capt. S. E. Moses, commanding the aircraft squadrons, the U.S.S. Prometheus and two destroyers, will accompany the seaplanes on their trip along the coast. The U.S.S. Gannet, tender to the aircraft squadrons, will proceed on June 18 to Sand Point to establish a camp for the aviation units.

THE U.S.S. Prometheus, under the command of Comdr. R. T. Menner, will be decommissioned as soon as possible after arrival at Puget Sound on July 5. The officers and crew on the Prometheus will be transferred to the U.S.S. Medusa, the new fleet repair ship recently completed at the navy yard, Puget Sound. The Medusa will be commissioned in time to operate with the fleet during the coming fall.

THE DH plane piloted by Lt. Comdr. McComb, with Capt. S. E. Moses, commander aircraft squadrons, as a passenger, made a forced landing at sea on June 10 during the rehearsal of the Battle Fleet Force practice. Lt. Comdr. McComb landed the plane on the water close to the U.S.S. Kingfisher and both officers were taken out of the plane and the plane hauled on board the Kingfisher. No injuries were sustained by the officers and the plane was damaged only to a small extent.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made by the City of Seattle to hold Fleet Week in Seattle from Aug. 18 to 23. Each year during the stay of the Battle Fleet in Puget Sound waters the City of Seattle designates one week for entertaining the officers and men of the fleet. During this week numerous entertainments are held for the officers and men, sight-seeing trips provided and every effort made to welcome the fleet to Seattle.

THE state of California allows a reduction in the state taxes to all local residents who rendered military and naval service to the United States in time of war. Arrangements have been made by the state officials and commanding officers of ships of the Battle Fleet to provide the necessary information for all officers and men who are subject to the state tax and who by reason of their war service can claim exemption.

THE Japanese naval tanker H.I.M. Ondo arrived at San Pedro on June 10 to load a cargo of fuel oil. The H.I.M. Ondo and Sata are both Japanese fleet oilers and make regular trips between the United States and Japan.

RECENT changes in officers of the Battle Fleet are: Lt. Comdr. H. H. Norton to engineer officer of the U.S.S. Maryland as the relief of Comdr. W. P. Beehler, who was ordered to the hospital. Lt. Comdr. Norton was originally ordered to Asiatic Station, but these orders were cancelled.

Lt. Comdr. A. G. Kirk has been ordered as gunnery officer of the U.S.S. Maryland as the relief of Lt. Comdr. J. F. Cox, who goes to the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department.

Lt. Comdr. C. C. Windsor has been ordered as engineer officer of the U.S.S. New Mexico as the relief of Lt. Comdr. J. A. Broshek, who goes to the Bureau of Engineering, Navy Department.

Lt. Comdr. R. M. Hinckley has been detached from command of the U.S.S. Mervine and ordered to the office of Naval Intelligence, Navy Department.

Lt. Comdr. George M. Lowry has been detached from command of the U.S.S. McDonough and ordered to the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department.

Comr. Abram Claude has assumed command of Destroyer Division 34, relieving Comdr. W. S. Anderson, who has been ordered as head of the Ordnance Department, Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

ARMY NOTES

LT. COL. A. F. DANNEMILLER, Inf., U.S.A., on duty in the office of the Chief of Infantry, left Washington on June 11 for approximately a five weeks' inspection of Infantry activities of the summer camps in the Far West and South. His itinerary is as follows: June 16 to 20, Camp Lewis, Wash.; June 22 to 28, Presidio of Monterey, Calif.; June 29 to July 1, Fort Douglas, Utah; July 2 to 3, Fort Logan, Colo.; July 5 to 8, Fort Sill, Okla.; July 9 to 12, Fort Sam Houston, Texas; July 15 to 21, Camp McClellan, Ala. He will return to Washington the latter part of July.

TWO contracts were awarded on June 7, one for a ward building, a laboratory and out-patients building, and a quarters for nurses at the hospital at the Naval Operating Base, San Diego, Calif., for $422,400; and the other for resetting boilers in the power plant at the hospital at the Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., for approximately $11,300. The bidding items for the hospital project mentioned provided for the receipt of separate bids on, first, the general construction; second, the plumbing work and third, the heating and electrical work. However, the lowest bid for the entire work, upon which the award was made, proved to be $257 less than the sum of the lowest bids on the separate parts.

THE cableship Dellwood arrived in Seattle, Wash., on June 5, 1924, having completed the laying of the first half of the new Alaskan cable. She is now undergoing repairs which included the installation of a new propeller, and it is expected that the ship will sail on June 17 for London to secure the balance of the cable. It is believed that this trip will be completed early enough to allow the laying of the second half of the new cable before the close of navigation in Alaskan waters this fall.

FORT LEAVENWORTH, KAS., recently published the results of the inter-troop competition between the senior and junior Boy Scouts of the fort and the various individual awards. Maj. J. M. Cummins acted as chairman of the troop committee. The three best scouts of Fort Leavenworth: Gold medal, 1st, 1st Class Scout Howard C. Price, jr., No. 3, Troop 24, Merit badges.

MAJ. GEN. W. J. SNOW, chief of Field Artillery, arrived at San Francisco on June 18 returning from his visit of inspection to Honolulu. On his return trip to Washington, Gen. Snow will probably make visits of inspection at the Presidio of Monterey; Camp Lewis, Wash.; Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo., and Fort Sill, Okla.

SPECIAL WASHINGTON SERVICE NEWS LETTER

by E. B. JOHNS

Washington Correspondent of the Army and Navy Journal

BRIG. GEN. CHARLES G. DAWES, O.R.C., U.S.A., was nominated for Vice President by the Republican National Convention on June 12 at Cleveland. It was not Mr. Dawes the organizer of the budget system for the Federal Government, nor the chairman of the Dawes Reparations Commission, nor the great business leader. It was a former general officer of the A.E.F. that was nominated by the convention.

When Arizona started the stampede the chairman of the delegation arose and announced, "Arizona casts nine votes for Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes." In the same manner and in the same words each delegation that turned to "Hell Maria" announced its vote until the chairman of the Lone Star state heralded victory by thundering, "Texas casts twenty-three votes for Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes." And it was not by mere chance that Gen. Dawes military title was used in announcing the vote. It was a declaration that the Republican convention was deliberately giving Calvin Coolidge a soldier as a running mate. The delegates were ready to recognize Gen. Dawes' war service by placing him on the ticket. It was his chief asset in winning the victory.

The result came after Governor Lowden had been nominated and declined, and in turn Gen. Harbord, Senator Curtis, Senator Borah and Judge Kenyon had been agreed upon by the leaders of the larger delegations, and for one reason or other taken out of the race. The leaders of the convention with Chairman Butler of the National Committee, who was recognized as spokesman for the present administration, took up the question of selecting a running mate for President Coolidge even before the convention convened. Numerous conferences were held on the Saturday before the convention, and every day up to the time that it was called to order. It was frequently announced that President Coolidge would pursue a "hands off" policy in selecting the candidate for the vice presidency. Just as frequently it was stated by the leaders of the larger delegations that a man would be nominated who was selected by the President. It was insisted that the President should select his running mate. Just the opposite of these two policies was pursued in the closing hours of the convention when the name of Gen. Dawes swept from delegation to delegation like a prairie fire. President Coolidge might as well have been on the floor of the convention on the first day as far as the attitude that the leaders assumed toward Chairman Butler. He was recognized as the spokesman of the President and the leaders accepted or rejected candidates at nod of his head.

SERVICE MEN A BIG FACTOR

There was no concerted action by any group or any delegation until the Service men held a caucus which was described in the last issue of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL. When the Service caucus was called it moved like a veteran battalion that had gone over the top two or three times. After some short speeches a resolution was passed appointing a committee and directing it to select a candidate. An hour after this committee had selected Gen. Harbord his nomination was generally conceded. Arrangements were being made to present his name to the convention, and delegation after delegation were being lined up for him.

Then something happened in administration circles. Some one convinced Chairman Butler that it would be unwise at this time to place a soldier on the ticket. It was represented that the agricultural states would not support a soldier candidate. Chairman Butler indicated his objections to Gen. Harbord or any other soldier candidate, and this information was conveyed to Gen. Harbord over a long distance phone. Under these conditions it is stated Gen. Harbord asked that his name be not presented to the convention and his wishes were observed.

HARBORD AND DAWES ON THE SLATE

The wheel took another turn. Chairman Butler asked the agricultural states, known as the Farm Bloc, to follow the example of the Service men and hold a caucus. A call was sent out for thirteen states which were classed as agricultural. The caucus met on the afternoon of June 11. Its first meeting resembled a senatorial debate on the Ford Muscle Shoals project. The caucus got no where and adjourned to meet after dinner. After about three hours of senatorial debate a plan was agreed to by which each state should name four acceptable candidates. The word was sent down the line that Chairman Butler preferred Senator Curtis of Kansas. Despite the information that was circulated that the agricultural bloc was opposed to the nomination of a soldier the names of Gen. Harbord and Gen. Dawes were on the slates of three states and Gen. Hines on two of them.

When the committee from the farm bloc called on Chairman Butler to announce the action of its caucus the spokesman of the administration calmly informed its chairman that Senator Borah had been selected. At this point Chairman Butler lost control of the convention. Senator Borah had not received a vote in the caucus of the farm bloc. He had not even been mentioned in the caucus, nor had there been any plan for placing him before the convention. The following morning Senator Borah announced that he would not accept the nomination. His declination had no effect on the final results, for he could not have been nominated, as even his friends objected to the manner in which he had been injected into a situation that was rapidly becoming very acute.

FISHING FOR CANDIDATES

In the morning session of the last day of the convention on June 12 Governor Lowden's name was put forth by the leaders and he was nominated on the second ballot. The convention refused to take his previous announcement seriously and adjourned, while Chairman Mondell called Governor Lowden over the long distance phone. Governor Lowden not only stated that he was firm in his determination not to accept the nomination, but he sent a strong telegram to this effect which was read and the convention was again at sea.

Immediately Chairman Butler passed the word along the line that he desired the selection of Judge Kenyon. The administration leaders began to line up the delegations for Judge Kenyon, but ten minutes after the administration switched to Herbert Hoover. The switch was so sudden that the administration emissaries were not able to reach all the delegations.

TURNS TO SOLDIER CANDIDATE

It was at this point that the convention turned to a soldier candidate. Nebraska was instructed to vote for Gen. Dawes, and Gen. Harbord's name had not been placed before the convention. Gen. Hines had been nominated, but leaders who had reached the conclusion that the real solution of the problem was the nomination of a soldier candidate flocked around the banner of a brigadier general of the A.E.F. Chairman Butler was quoted as saying to Col. David Reed, who is one of the big four of Pennsylvania, that "Hoover must be nominated," whereupon he received an answer from an officer of the A.E.F.

"It cannot be done. Gen. Dawes is going to be nominated."

In a few minutes the prediction of one of the members of the soldier caucus was verified.

Perhaps what influenced the convention in the late hours of its session was the manner in which Gen. Harbord had been forced out of the race. The advocates of the nomination of a soldier for the second place on the ticket after the decision of Gen. Harbord not to permit his name to be presented took up the slogan, "Can a Republican convention afford to go before the country with the declaration that 'No Service men need apply'?"

GEN. DAWES NOMINATED

It was contrary to tradition of the Republican party, and when once the movement to nominate a soldier centered behind Gen. Dawes it gained such great force that it nominated him in one ballot.

This statement was issued by the committee supporting Gen. Harbord's nomination:

"The nomination of Gen. Dawes as Vice President would be considered a victory by the ex-Service men, who have throughout the convention felt the hostility to ex-soldiers too evident on the part of some of the leaders.

"Gen. Harbord, though not responsible for the campaign carried on in his behalf, was so loyal to the party that, when conscious of this fear to endorse an ex-soldier, he requested his followers not to submit his name to the convention. This despite the fact that the failure of the leaders to coalesce back of Curtis the sentiment of the thirteen western farm states added materially to the rapid rate of increase in Gen. Harbord's strength resulting from his endorsement by the Ex-Service Men's Committee of Delegates representing thirty-nine states and two territories.

"All Gen. Harbord's followers are delighted with Gen. Dawes's nomination, not only because of his obvious qualifications and the fact that he and Gen. Harbord have been intimate friends since they worked together in the Service of Supply in France, but, above all, because his nomination shows that the virus of pacifism which has commenced to taint the veins of the republic is far from dominating the Republican Party.

"HENRY J. REILLY, Brig. Gen., O.R.C., "Chairman Harbord Committee."

Before the Service men got together in a caucus at Cleveland the suggestion that a soldier should be given the second place on the national ticket was not taken seriously. The daily press paid very little attention to interviews given out in support of Gen. Harbord. But when the leaders of the party saw how the Service men could get together and work the movement to nominate Gen. Harbord became very impressive. The rejection of Gen. Harbord by the spokesman of the administration was a shock to the soldier group at the convention. They were driven back from the front trenches. But they quickly reformed their lines and kept hammering away at the enemy, and at the last hour when the other groups were demoralized they moved with such force that they could not be denied, and even the powerful influence of the administration could not stop them.

The spirit of the A.E.F. was in the convention.

CHANGING A.E.F. SENTIMENTS

THERE is only one way to account for the cordial attitude of the former Service men in the caucus at Cleveland convention for Gen. Harbord, and that is the work of the Regular Army in developing the Army of the United States with its three components. Of course, Gen. Harbord's personal popularity overseas among those with whom he came in contact and his brilliant record as a combat officer contributed in a great degree to his reception at the Service men's caucus. But there were some younger members of the caucus to which this influence scarcely extended. There were real indications of a radical change in the sentiment of not only the A.E.F., but in Service men generally to the Regular Army.

In milling around through the leaders and delegates some of the over-cautious politicians were heard frequently to question the availability of Gen. Harbord because he was a Regular officer. These, however, I fear, are living in the past. They are not now in touch with the sentiment of the men in the National Guard and Organized Reserves and ex-members of the Services, all of whom are voters. At the caucus there was not the least suggestion or hint that either Gen. Harbord or Gen. Hines, on account of their Regular service, would not be available. To the Service men who represented states from Massachusetts to North Dakota, Gen. Hines, Gen. Harbord and Gen. Dawes were all in the same class. From the speeches that were made no one would have imagined that there was any distinction in their service in the World War.

Perhaps the most enthusiastic supporters of Gen. Harbord in the Regular Services were in the Marine Corps. It is stated at all the Marine Corps headquarters and posts officers and enlisted men listened in on the radio with intense interest at reports as to the prospects of the nomination of Gen. Harbord. In the Army and Navy Club at Washington is a portrait of Gen. Harbord, placed there by the Marine Corps as an expression of their love for the general. As far as the sentiment of the Marine Corps goes, he is still in their outfit.

THE PAY ACT

ON the floor of the House, just before the bill (H.R. 4820) amending the Pay act was adopted, upon motion of Representative Wright of Georgia, Sec. 6 was attached to the bill. It did not attract much attention, but it will affect every officer who was demoted under the Anthony-Curry amendment to the appropriation bill, relieving them from a very unreasonable decision of the Comptroller General. It provides—

"That the pay saved to an officer by Sec. 16 of this act or by the act of Sept. 14, 1922, shall be construed as the pay provided in this act (Pay act of 1922) for the purpose of computing retired pay."

In a word, the Comptroller General decided that the saving clause of the Pay act applied only to the rate of pay that an officer should receive while he is on the active list. Under his decision, if an officer should be retired before he was restored to his former place on the promotion list, he would receive three-fourths of the pay of the grade in which he was serving at the time of his retirement. He would also be given credit only for the length of service that was required for the grade. The amendment will be retroactive also for quite a number of officers who are now on the retired list.

NEW ASSISTANT C. OF B. OF NAVIGATION

CAPT. EDGAR J. CAMPBELL, U.S.N., at present captain of the Mare Island Navy Yard, has been selected as Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Navigation and will relieve Capt. Richard H. Leigh about July 1. His selection was hailed with general satisfaction throughout the Navy Department, where he has served on previous details.

Previous to his assignment to the Mare Island Navy Yard, Capt. Campbell was commander of the Pennsylvania. When Rear Adm. Shoemaker, present Chief of the Bureau of Navigation was commander of the battle divisions of the Battle Fleet Capt. Campbell served as his chief of staff.

SHORTAGE OF NAVY OFFICERS

THERE has been such a great pressure from the Fleet to the Navy Department for more officers that the suggestion has been made that the post-graduate courses and the War College be suspended, at least temporarily. The War College is now short six commanders in this year's class and there are very little prospect of securing them from the Fleet or from other sources, but the Navy Department has rejected the proposal for the abandonment of these important features of the educational system of the Navy. There are many officers in the Navy who insist that these institutions should be ex-

DRASTIC CUT MADE IN U.S.N.A. TEACHING STAFF

A DRASTIC cut in the force of civilian teachers at the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., was announced last week, twenty-one in all being notified that their services would not be needed further. Most of these received leave of absence with pay for six months, their connection with the Academy ceasing at the end of their leave. The discharge of a few ended with the receipt of the notice.

Of the twenty-one who will leave twelve have been in the department of modern languages and the others are nearly evenly divided between the departments of mathematics and English. It is stated that the whole number to leave the Academy at this time is twenty-three, about one-quarter of the whole number of civilians.

Rear Adm. Henry B. Wilson, Superintendent of the Academy, stated that it had been necessary to dispense with the services of some of the civilians on account of the decreased appropriations made by Congress for the maintenance of the Academy.

Some of those dropped have been with the Academy for as much as twenty years, and the action was entirely unexpected in some cases. A number had acquired homes in Annapolis and are closely connected with the life of the city.

THREE departments of the Naval Academy will have new heads when the academic year opens about Oct. 1. The first one of these, Seamanship, made vacant when Capt. Harold E. Cook was designated as commandant of midshipmen and head of the executive department, has not yet been filled.

Comdr. Walter S. Anderson will succeed Comdr. Wilbur R. Van Auken as head of the department of ordnance and gunnery, and Comdr. William J. Giles will succeed Comdr. John Downes as head of the department of navigation.

NEW ROLE FOR ARKANSAS NATIONAL GUARD UNIT

THOUGH the National Guard has demonstrated its efficiency to serve under any and all conditions, it is doubtful until a recent Arkansas occurrence that any one thought of utilizing the organization as an adjunct to the religious campaigns so energetically carried on by the Rev. Billy Sunday. The incident is related as follows:

"Tryout of a powerful new 36-inch motorized Army searchlight unit by the Fayetteville battery of the 206th Coast Artillery, anti-aircraft, A.N.G., Tuesday night, seriously shocked a negro settlement in the hollow of the hills near the city, according to a report received by Maj. Samuel R. Scott, assistant state adjutant general.

"The searchlight, fed by a large motor generator, was tested on the hilltops. When the broad beam of light swept through the hollow the negroes became stricken with fear and believed it meant the end of the world.

"Hastily the negro religious guide of the settlement was summoned. In the great rays of light bathing the hilltop the negroes thought they saw Gabriel and his angels and prayers and chants rose from the valley."

ARRANGE FOR BETTER FIT OF ARMY UNIFORMS

A RECENT letter from the Quartermaster General to The Adjutant General of the Army, and which has been sent to all camps, posts and stations, relative to special measurement uniforms, says:

"It is noted that in attached reports as well as in similar reports forwarded to this office by the War Department numerous comments are made as to the looseness or bagginess of the breeches and the coat. This is apparently due to a misunderstanding on the part of the field as to the appearance of the new type uniform as approved by the Chief of Staff. It is also the opinion of this office that many uniforms are being altered to overcome this fullness in the uniform which was considered desirable by the Chief of Staff.

"In order that the field would be informed as to the proper appearance of the uniforms photographs and instructions as to proper method of measurement were furnished to each corps area or department headquarters and to each camp, post and station."

HAWAIIAN ARMY REPORT SHOWS SOLDIER SPIRIT

KILAUEA'S activity of recent date was reported to the Hawaiian Department commander in the following document, which is interesting in that it touches on the event from the viewpoint of the military camp at that place. The report states:

"Following a week of mild explosive eruptions the volcano of Kilauea began on Friday morning, May 16, to increase in its violence. At about three hours' intervals throughout the day heavy explosions would occur, which increased in violence till 9 p.m., when a terrific explosion covering the entire pit area took place. The eruption in all lasted about forty-five minutes. The column of debris rose to a height of five or six miles and generated in rising a fairly violent electrical storm. Lightning played continually for about an hour and its effects were added to by the eruption of explosive material from the pit. Many of them incandescent and exploding like shrapnel in midair or upon striking the earth.

"The members of this command evinced an admirable steadiness and after the first few minutes exhibited no signs of panic.

"At 11 a.m., Sunday, an eruption heavier than any previous occurred. Many sight-seeing parties were present and one party had gone by the guards on the road and was very near the pit when the explosion occurred. One member of this party was seriously injured, both legs being broken and mangled.

"Members of this party reported seeing two soldiers at the edge of the pit immediately before this eruption.

"The undersigned called for volunteers to accompany him in a search for these men. The response was gratifying in the extreme, more than twenty men from the permanent party volunteering instantly. Four men were chosen and the terrain for about 400 yards around the spot where the men were reported last seen was thoroughly searched, but no trace was accompanied by some difficulty on account of the torrential fall of mud and ash and the steam generated by its falling on the hot rocks and boulders with which the ground was thickly covered.

"It is certain that no living persons were in that vicinity. It is almost equally certain that if they were in the locality reported to me that they perished and were covered by hot debris, which was in places a foot or two in depth.

"The detachment here is kept in readiness to move on short notice. If it becomes necessary to move I shall send the detachment under the second in command and remain here with two volunteers.

"No debris of sufficient size to disable has fallen within a mile of the camp as yet.

"No immediate danger is anticipated.
"CHARLES H. PERKINS,
"Commanding."

ENLISTED MAN DROWNS AT U.S. NAVAL ACADEMY

EDWARD M. EATON, second class seaman, U.S. Navy, aged 24 years, and whose home was 1124 Madison street, Chester, Pa., was drowned at the Naval Academy shortly after two Sunday afternoon. He formerly lived at Easton, Md.

It is supposed that Eaton was fishing from the sea wall or a small wharf running from it and slipped overboard. A civilian heard a splash and informed the authorities. Eaton's body was recovered with grappling lines, but as he had been under water for twenty minutes he did not respond to efforts for his resuscitation.

TWO ENLISTED MEN ARE CITED FOR BRAVERY

Risked Their Lives for the Victims of Airplane Accident

FOUR DIED IN THE WRECK

THE two enlisted men of the Army Air Service at Luke Field, Hawaii, who distinguished themselves during the accident at the field a short time ago when two officers and two enlisted men of the station lost their lives, have received official citations for their bravery from Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commanding the Hawaiian Department.

Staff Sergt. Harry Mosher, the first man to be cited, was not in the crash, but was near the spot where the plane fell. He dashed into the mass of wreckage and flames and rescued a helpless and injured comrade who was in imminent danger of death. Pvt. Joe Torres was the sole survivor of the crash. He was dragged from the wreckage, but, disregarding all danger, attempted the rescue of those pinned beneath the wrecked plane.

The citations follow: "Harvey E. Mosher, staff sergeant, 6th Pursuit Squadron, Air Ser. For meritorious conduct at Luke Field, Hawaii, March 27, 1924. He fearlessly plunged into a mass of wreckage and flames, resulting from the crash of a N.B.S.—1 airplane, in order to rescue therefrom an injured and helpless comrade. The highly commendable conduct of Staff Sergt. Mosher on this occasion affords an inspiring example of unflinching self-sacrifice and devotion to duty.

"Joe M. Torres, private first-class, 65th Service Squadron, Air Ser. For meritorious conduct at Luke Field, Hawaii, March 27, 1924. Notwithstanding the fact that he was painfully bruised in the crash of an airplane, which resulted in the death of two officers and two enlisted men, this soldier, who was the sole survivor of the crash, fearlessly returned to the wrecked plane and, in disregard for his own safety, participated in an attempt to rescue the other injured and helpless occupants of the airplane. The highly meritorious conduct of Pvt. Torres affords an inspiring example of courage, soldierly spirit and unselfish sacrifice."

NATIONAL GUARD TO MOBILIZE ON SEPT. 12

All Units Federally Recognized to Drill in Armories

RESERVES PARTICIPATE

EACH federally recognized unit of the National Guard will, on Mobilization Day, Sept. 12, next, hold an armory drill upon that date. The drill so ordered may be counted for purposes of armory drill pay, provided the number of officers and men in attendance is in accord with the law and regulations entitling them to receive such drill pay, and provided that the drill does not exceed the number for which pay is authorized by law. It is further provided that such part of the armory drill period of one and one-half hours, prescribed by law, as is not consumed by the details of the test mobilization shall be used for additional instruction.

Prior to Sept. 12, 1924, it will be required of each National Guard officer to carefully read over Army Regulations 120-10, "Mobilization of Man-Power for Military Purposes," and A.R. 130-10, "National Guard, Call and Draft into Federal Service."

For those members of the Organized Reserves who are unable to attend assembly of their unit at their own expense, they will be requested to report by telephone, telegraph or mail so that they may be counted as constructively present.

CULVER CADETS GET R.O.T.C. CERTIFICATES

TWENTY-NINE cadets of Culver Military Academy finished the four years of the R.O.T.C. course and received their certificates of eligibility for appointment as second lieutenants at the commencement exercises June 11. These graduates received these certificates instead of the commissions themselves because they were not 21 years of age at the time of graduation. All have performed their camp duty.

The presentation was made by Maj. Gen. Robert H. Tindal of Indianapolis, commander of the 38th Division, Indiana National Guard. Gen. Tindal also presented a commission as second lieutenant in the Oklahoma National Guard to Cadet Joe Allen Niles of that state, who is a member of the graduating class at Culver.

During the Culver finals Col. John Madden of the headquarters staff of the 5th Corps Area presented the medals for marksmanship and for theoretical instruction in branches of the R.O.T.C. course. Academic medals at the Culver commencement were awarded by former Vice President Thomas R. Marshall.

Superintendent Brig. Gen. L. R. Gignilliat presented diplomas to 161 graduates on June 11. Many of these had entered advanced classes in the academy and had therefore completed only the basic or the first year advanced work of the R.O.T.C. They will go on for the later advanced courses in college.

COURT SESSION OF JUNE 16

At the session of the court of inquiry on June 16, Lt. Comdr. W. R. Carter, U. S.N., senior engineer officer, disputed the theory that insufficient air pressure may have been the cause of one of the explosions. He introduced his records to show that all the air compressors on the battleship were running full blast at the time of the explosion. The air pressure, at that time, he said, was shown by the gauges to have been 140 pounds. Just before the final salvo was fired, he declared, the safety valve lifted and fell five or six times, and these valves were set at 140 pounds pressure each.

The testimony of Lt. Comdr. W. R. Carter was contradicted in part by Turret Capt. Walter C. Ebel of Turret No. 3. He testified that before his battery commenced firing he noticed that the air pressure was but 120 pounds. Normally, he said, the pressure was maintained at 150 pounds. He immediately ordered that the pressure be brought up to 150 pounds, he said, but after the first salvo the pressure decreased so that only 110 pounds of pressure remained when his battery ceased firing. He deemed this sufficient, however.

Ebel also intimated that the gauges showing the pressure could not always be depended upon. As far as he knew, he said, the gauges had never been tested, though they were removed from the dreadnought at Bremerton in October last year. Ens. F. W. Parsons stated that after gun 5 had gone off in the harbor he noticed that the electric switch was thrown on the storage battery and that he threw it into neutral or "off" position.

George C. I. Ogletree, seaman, first class, a member of the rescue party, testified that the stiffened and swaying arm of Ens. Marcos Erwin, jr., one of the officers killed in the explosion, came into contact with the firing switch of gun 5 as the body was being carried out. The second explosion followed instantly, taking a toll of four more lives.

Ogletree said that he and a comrade were carrying the body from the turret at the time when the arm of the dead officer swayed outward and struck the switch, throwing it on the battery and discharging the gun.

Impressive funeral services were held at San Pedro, Calif., June 17, for the officers and men who lost their lives aboard the U.S.S. Mississippi. Every ship in the Pacific Fleet had its mourners formed in a hollow square about the coffins, which were arranged in the form of a cross. As the band marched in the field an airplane dropped bowers.

Vice Adm. Henry A. Wiley said: "We come here in sorrow to mourn the loss of our comrades and join in the last services over them. The accident found them at their posts, putting forth the best that was in them. Their last moments gave the most positive proofs of their courage and devotion. They died in line of duty."

Rear Adm. Pratt declared that the men who perished gave their lives heroically to their country. The accident, he said, disclosed no faint hearts among the men of the Mississippi.

FURLOUGH ADDRESSES PUBLISHED AT U.S.M.A.

List Shows Representation of States at Military Academy

OTHERS IN SUMMER CAMP

FOR the information of many who are interested in the Corps of Cadets the authorities of the Military Academy recently published a list of the classes of 1924 and 1926, with the furlough addresses of the newly graduated second lieutenants and the second class at West Point.

The second lieutenants will be ordered to their stations at the expiration of the graduation furlough. The comprehensive address list shows the representation of the states and territories in the Corps of Cadets, every state in the Union having at least one standard-bearer in each class.

For most of the second lieutenants hailing from the Far West the leave is the first one of sufficient length to enable them to reach their homes with the exception of a summer furlough granted them as cadets in 1922.

The members of the class of 1926 are now enjoying their first long furlough since they entered West Point and the addresses given by the cadets show that most of them are going home, even though home be as far away as Hawaii.

The rest of the Corps of Cadets are in summer encampment, exercising in routine drills under the direction of the class of 1925, now the first class.

SIGNAL CORPS SCHOOL GRADUATES 20 MEN

DURING the school year just ended twenty Infantry enlisted men from brigades and regiments completed the radio electrician's course and twelve completed the telephone and telegraph electrician's course at the Signal Corps School. In the radio electrician's class, which consisted of forty-three students from the Infantry, Field Artillery, Cavalry and Signal Corps, Sergt. E. H. Becker, 9th Inf., graduated with first honors. All the students have been returned to the organizations from which they were detailed to attend the school, and they will no doubt be valuable aids to those charged with the training of communication platoons.

The plans of the Chief of Infantry contemplate sending additional enlisted men to take the next course at the Signal Corps School, provided funds are available. Following are the Infantry graduates of the 1923-24 school year:

Q.M. CORPS OF ARMY KEEPS ANNIVERSARY

Worldwide Celebration by Corps Marks Observance of Historic Date

HOLIDAY PROGRAM HELD

THE big day for the Quartermaster

Corps was on June 16, when quartermasters in every corner of the globe, at home and abroad, celebrated the 149th anniversary of the supply branch of the Army, which came into existence in Philadelphia on June 16, 1775—"one year older than the Nation itself," as all good quartermasters boast. Reports to Maj. Gen. William H. Hart, the Quartermaster General, show that this year's anniversary parties will outnumber any ever held before. Throughout the United States, and in Paris, Panama, Hawaii and the Philippines there were the usual celebrations. At Gen. Hart's suggestion, all the personnel of the Quartermaster Corps participated in the festivities, which took the form of banquets, luncheons, picnics, supper dances, athletic contests or other entertainments.

A special holiday dinner was served to all men of the Quartermaster Corps units on that day, together with varied programs of amusements. There was plenty doing everywhere, not only for the commissioned personnel, which includes Regulars, Reservists and National Guardsmen, but for the enlisted men and civilian employees.

In the big cities, as usual, there were notable banquets with many distinguished speakers. Some 150 officers and ex-officers of the Quartermaster Corps attended the dinner in Washington at the City Club. Quartermaster General was the guest of honor at the Chicago dinner. Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Columbus, San Francisco and Los Angeles vied with the Nation's capital in the size and brilliancy of their gatherings. The same story comes from the various posts and stations. Fort Leavenworth showed moving pictures of Quartermaster work under fire in France six years ago. San Antonio had 250 officers and business men at the Alamo Country Club, and at Camp Normoyle the enlisted men staged a big athletic carnival, followed by a dinner and a dance. Quartermasters at Jeffersonville, Ind., arranged a get-together jollification at Rose Island during the afternoon and evening, making the trip on the steamboat America, and sitting down to supper afloat. Greetings were exchanged by radio and telegraph between the larger dinners, for the quartermasters propose to show that their morale and enthusiasm for service is greater than ever it has been before.

Brig. Gen. John B. Bellinger, A.Q.G., presided at the Washington dinner, which was a notable gathering of not only Q.M. officers, but of General Staff and line officers. Secretary Weeks, Gen. Pershing and Gen. Hart were among those who sent telegraphic greetings to the Washington celebration. Among the speakers were Assistant Secretary of War Davis, Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, Deputy Chief of Staff, and Brig. Gen. Dennis Nolan, Assistant Chief of Staff.

PRECISION DRILL FOR HAWAIIAN DEPARTMENT

HIGH standards have been set for the soldiers of the Hawaiian Department by the second annual precision drill contest held on June 3, 1924, at Fort Shafter. The winning organizations, divided into the three departments of the contest were: Company drill, Co. L, 35th Inf., commanded by Capt. Paul H. Peabody; platoon drill, 1st Platoon, Battery B, 41st Art. Btl., Fort Kamehameha, commanded by 1st Lt. Dean Luce; squad drill, squad from Co. E, 19th Inf., Schofield Barracks, commanded by Corpl. George P. Brown.

Competing units were entered from the three principal divisions of the Hawaiian Department, namely, the Hawaiian Division at Schofield Barracks, the Hawaiian Coast Artillery District, comprising all the Coast Artillery posts in the department, and units from the air station at Luke Field. Entrants were also authorized from Tripler General Hospital, Fort Armstrong and the Hawaiian Ordnance Depot.

Competition drill as held at Fort Shafter is the culmination of a long series of minor eliminative drills carried on at the various posts to decide upon the most proficient units to enter into the final department competition. The precision drill competition was authorized as a yearly event by Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commanding the Hawaiian Department, in November, 1923.

Units competing are judged on nine subjects, including, clothing, equipment, military bearing, commands, cadence, precision, steadiness, alignment and manual of arms. The points are divided as follows: Clothing 5, equipment 10, military bearing 10, commands 100, cadence 5, precision 25, steadiness 10, alignment 15, and the manual 15, making a total of 100 points.

The drill took place on the main parade ground at Fort Shafter, before a distinguished audience of high officers in the Hawaiian Department. They were: Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, department commander; Maj. Gen. Charles T. Menoher, commanding the Hawaiian Division; Brig. Gen. John D. Barrette, commanding the Hawaiian Coast Artillery District; Brig. Gen. Richmond P. Davis, commanding the 22d Infantry Brigade; Col. Henry Merriam, commanding the Coast Defense of Pearl Harbor, and a number of regimental commanders.

Lt. Col. Stephen O. Fuqua, Gen. Staff Corps, was appointed head of a group of officers acting as judges in the competition. The other judges were Maj. Maurice Willett, Coast Art. Corps; Maj. Clifford Mathews, 21st Inf.; Capt. John McCollister, 11th Field Art. Brigade, and Capt. James Urquhart, Inf. D.O.L.

Cups are awarded the winning organizations, and will be presented with appropriate ceremony at their respective posts. The cups won in each contest become the permanent property of the organizations winning them. In addition to the cup, Co. L, 35th Inf., will be awarded a pennant, which is most highly prized, and will be carried on the staff of the company guidon until the next department competition is held.

AMUNDSEN ARCTIC FLIGHT PLANS

ACCORDING to information received from Lt. Ralph E. Davidson, U.S.N., who was selected from a number of volunteers to accompany Roald Amundsen on his approaching Arctic flight this summer, the preparations for the dash across the Arctic via the North Pole in aircraft are rapidly nearing completion.

The planes which will be used are the Dornier "Whales" and are equipped for landing on water, ice or snow. According to Navy Department advices, they were to have left Pisa, Italy, on June 3, where they were constructed, and flown to Spitzbergen via the Rhone river to Zurich, Switzerland. Thence by the Rhine to Texel in Holland; from Texel following the coast and the Kiel Canal to Christiania, Sweden, and then to Bergen, Tromsø and Spitzbergen.

Among those who will compose the Arctic flight group are Lts. Riiser-Larsen and Dietrichsen of the Royal Norwegian navy; Lt. Locatelli, Italian Air Service; Lt. Onidal, R.N.R.; Haakon Hammer, assistant of Amundsen, and Lt. Ralph E. Davidson, U.S.N.

YALE WINS FROM NAVY CREWS ON SCHUYLKILL

Annapolis Graduates in Close Finish Lose to the Eli Crew

NAVY VARSITY IS THIRD

THE Yale University varsity crew won the right to represent the United States in the Olympics by defeating the Annapolis graduate crew, the Naval Academy varsity crew, the University of Pennsylvania crew and the Undine Boat Club in the Olympic tryout finals on the Schuylkill river on June 14. The Bulldog oarsmen triumphed after a grueling struggle with the Navy graduate crew, the official timers recording only 11.5 seconds between the time both shells swept across the finish line.

In the preliminary tryouts for the finals the Yale crew beat Naval Academy varsity by a length and the Navy graduate crew won from Pennsylvania by about the same distance.

Rowing a smooth 38, the Leader-coached collegians took up the Navy challenge when Ens. Frawley, graduate crew stroke, hit the beat up to 40 and kept practically abreast of the Navy shell for the latter part of the race, crawling ahead just enough to decide the victory at the finish.

The midshipmen varsity crew beat the Pennsylvania and Undine Boat Club crews, but failed to overtake the leaders in a final desperate spurt and came in about a length and a half behind Yale and the graduate crew.

NAVY FOOTBALL SQUAD PRACTICE SCHEDULE SET

ARRANGEMENTS have been made for the members of the Naval Academy football squad to complete the summer cruise and go on leave slightly in advance of the other midshipmen, and they will return to Annapolis on Sept. 18 to begin practice. The first game, with William and Mary, is on Oct. 4.

Bob Folwell, who will again be head coach, will have several changes in his staff of assistants. Scafe, for several seasons chief line coach, and Ewen, end coach, will not return.

Among the old assistants who will return are Welch, head backfield coach; "Pop" Perry, coach of the kickers, and John Wilson, plebe coach. Parr, captain of the 1922 team, will succeed Ewen as end coach, and "Shaggy" Cullen of the 1922 and 1923 Navy teams will be one of the backfield coaches. Tow-line coaches are to be selected.

TWO MORE ATHLETES ON NAVY'S OLYMPIC SQUAD

FIRST LT. HARRY B. LIVERSEDGE, U.S.M.C., and Mdsn. Aubrey B. Leggett, U.S.N., are accompanying the Navy Olympic squad on the U.S.S. West Virginia after being named by the Olympic Committee recently as the result of their showings in the recent tryouts.

Mdsn. Leggett is an excellent javelin thrower and has shown very good form in the past season. He has broken a number of Naval Academy records in intercollegiate competition at Annapolis.

ELECT NAVY CREW CAPT.

MDSN. HERMAN E. SCHIEKE of Lead, S.D., has been elected captain of the Naval Academy crew for next season. He has rowed in every varsity race for the past two seasons. He succeeds Ens. Elliot W. Shanklin, the captain of this year's crew.

CAMP McCLELLAN, ALA.

The baseball season opened at Camp McClellan on May 31 with a practice game between the 8th Infantry and the 22d Infantry. Much interest was shown in the game, as both regiments have just arrived at Camp McClellan for summer training camp duty, and there is a great deal of friendly rivalry between them.

The game was won by the 8th Infantry with a score of 7 to 2. Neither team had had a chance to practice owing to having just arrived at camp.

NOTICE

THE post baseball team of marine barracks, Parris Island, S.C., is out for the Service championship of the Southeast, and hereby challenges any Service team, including teams of the National Guard within a reasonable distance to a series of baseball games to determine their right to claim the Southeastern Service championship for this year.

HAROLD H. UTLEY,
Maj., U.S.M.C.,
Manager Post Baseball Team.

DRASTIC CHANGES IN 71ST INFANTRY, N.Y.N.G.

COL. WALTER A. DE LAMATER, Inf., N.G.N.Y., well known as an efficient and progressive officer and who also served with the A.E.F. during the World War, was on June 9 assigned to command the 71st Regiment, relieving Col. Edward J. McLeer, jr., of the division staff, from temporary command.

Col. James H. Wells, the former commander of the 71st, had been relieved from command of the 71st some six weeks ago, and also Lt. Col. James Eben. Their relief from duty had to do with the letting out of the armory to civic organizations for various exhibitions and shows under the auspices of the "Guardian Association," a civic organization.

The treasurer of the regiment was a civilian and had charge of the funds accruing from the rentals of the armory. There is no charge of any financial irregularities involved with the passing out of Col. Wells and Lt. Col. Eben, and both officers have long and honorable records. They were honorably discharged on June 9.

It is understood that the military authorities considered that the 71st Regiment armory was being let out too frequently and it is also understood that the activities of the civilian body in regimental affairs was not thought to be consistent with military custom or, all things considered, for the good of the regiment.

Col. Wells had been a member of the 71st since Dec. 14, 1892, when he joined it as a second lieutenant. He served in the Cuban campaign with it in 1898 as a captain. Lt. Col. Eben joined the regiment as a private in 1892.

Col. De Lamater first joined the 71st as a private in 1900 and has an excellent record. With his promotion to a commission his ability as an organizer later became famous, and he commanded a provisional company made up of men from fifteen different organizations that won renown. He also commanded the first war strength company.

He served on the Mexican border, and during the World War he was transferred to the 106th Infantry. He was promoted lieutenant colonel of that regiment in France and later became asst. chief of staff of the 79th Division in France in 1918, and colonel and chief of staff of the 77th Division in 1920. His World War service included St. Mihiel, Sector 304, Meuse-Argonne, Troyon Sector and Grand Montagne. A citation from Maj. Gen. Joseph A. Kuhn, U.S.A., commended Col. De Lamater for voluntary work done under deadly shell fire and without regard to his personal safety and also for his splendid work as an organizer and administrator while on duty at Headquarters, 1st Army, A.E.F., Headquarters, 3d Corps, A.E.F., and other commands to which he was assigned. He was also recommended by Gen. Kuhn for a D.S.M.

OFFICERS' DAUGHTERS OFFERED SCHOLARSHIPS

SCHOLARSHIPS for the daughters of Army and Navy officers have been instituted in Columbia University and Wellesley College by the Daughters of the Cincinnati according to a recent announcement made by that society.

The "Army and Navy Scholarship" at Columbia is for the Teachers' College and pays full tuition, the incumbent being allowed partial maintenance. A member of the Daughters of the Cincinnati provides the "Gen. Robert Anderson Scholarship" at Teachers' College, which pays full tuition, but no maintenance.

Wellesley College has granted to the Daughters of the Cincinnati the privilege of nominating a candidate for a freshman scholarship of $225, followed by a sophomore scholarship of $300. Appointments will be given to those who wish to prepare for entrance to Teachers' College.

AUTHORIZE INFANTRY SCHOOL SPORT COURSE

Purpose of the Project Is to Make Officers Sports Specialists

COVERS 2 YEAR PERIOD

THE Chief of Infantry has received authorization to establish an "athletic training course" at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., beginning with the school year of 1924-25, according to a recent circular issued by Maj. Gen. Robert C. Davis, The Adjutant General. The purpose of the course is to fit young Army lieutenants between the ages of 22 and 27 years to become competent athletic instructors in all branches of sport required to keep fighting units fit.

Agitation for the establishment of such a course, provided that it was not a separate department of instruction, was started and approved about Feb. 8, 1924, according to statements. Following an exchange of correspondence between the commandant of the Infantry School and The Adjutant General's office, in which the fact that the course was complementary to the established courses and did not require additional instructors or special details was emphasized, and final plans were evolved.

At present the course of instruction in athletics includes theoretical and practical work and demonstrations in the following branches: Football, baseball, basketball, track and field, gymnasium, boxing, wrestling and swimming. Administration of sports, such as officers are called for in R.O.T.C. and C.M.T.C. camps, is another phase of the course. The course covers two years and the students will be picked from among the officers present at the Infantry School for troop training.

The primary purpose of the course, its sponsors point out, is to keep both men and officers fit by building up and maintaining healthy bodies through the medium of the various athletics. The officers who take the course will become sports specialists and be able to conduct all kinds of games in such a manner as to interest their men. The periods of instruction will be from Sept. 1-Nov. 30; Jan. 1-15 and March 15-May 15.

WHITE HOUSE RADIO SET IS MADE BY U.S. NAVY

LT. COMDR. E. D. LANGWORTHY, U.S.N., of the radio section, Bureau of Engineering, has suddenly come into prominence on account of his achievement in producing a new and unique radio set for the White House. It was used for the first time during the sessions of the Cleveland Republican convention and its effectiveness has given it first place among radio sets. It is claimed to be superior in beauty and efficiency to the set of King George, recently installed in the Buckingham Palace.

It resembles a tea cart and can be moved rapidly about the room. The loud-speaking trumpet and all of the equipment of this wonderful set is skilfully concealed.

The Navy Department is also making a number of improvements for the radio equipment of the U.S.S. Mayflower, the President's yacht.

U.S.S. WEST VIRGINIA GROUNDING EXPLAINED

THE grounding of the U.S.S. West Virginia June 16 near Hampton Roads, Va., has raised the question as to whether it is a wise policy to locate the opening of the injection pipe for condensers in the bottom of the ship. The official report on the grounding indicates that it was due solely to the clogging of her condensers by mud. When her condensers clogged she lost power and floated on the bank of the channel. It is stated that the opening for the condenser pipe has been located in the bottom of the ship to increase the protection against torpedo attack. In making this change it is stated that the matter had been threshed out very thoroughly in the General Board before the change was made. The official report on the affair from the commanding officer received at the Navy Department is as follows:

"When West Virginia lost power it was due to clogging of her condensers. At time ship was exactly in center of dredged channel. Speed was ten knots, which, in view of experience gained when navigating this channel a few days before, was considered a minimum safe speed. Soundings taken in channel after grounding show depths as low as thirty-two feet, and these soundings are some distance from edge of channel. I urgently recommend that no ship navigate this channel drawing over thirty-three feet and whose injections are in the bottom of the ship. Had our injections been higher up ground, ing would not have occurred."

NAVY DEPT. WILL SEEK MONEY TO ELEVATE GUNS

RECENT action taken by the Navy Department, particularly in the past week, indicates that the naval budget to be submitted to Congress in December includes an item of 6,500,000 for the changes necessary to elevate the guns on thirteen of the first-line battleships.

The Navy Department sent the bill providing for the elevation of the guns, which was introduced a few weeks ago by Representative Fred H. Britten of Illinois, to the Director of the Budget, requesting information as to whether the suggested appropriation would conflict with the financial program of the President.

The Britten bill, introduced by the Representative on the House Naval Committee, provides for the gun elevation in accordance with the plans perfected by naval experts. The budget approved a similar item two years ago and the money was appropriated, but the department decided, for a number of reasons, not to proceed with the work.

According to reports in Washington, the British government is said to be planning to present a formal protest against the proposed elevation on the grounds that the undertaking would violate the Washington treaty.

CIVIL ENGINEER NOTES OF THE U.S. NAVY

REAR ADM. HARRY H. ROUSSEAU, C.E.C., will leave Washington, D.C., during the coming week for Los Angeles, Calif., for temporary duty in connection with Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1. On returning to Washington he will make an examination and inspection of Naval Oil Shale No. 1 in Grand Valley, Colo., in connection with proposed plans for its future development.

Lt. Comdr. Henry F. Bruns, C.E.C., will be detached from duty in the Bureau of Yards and Docks on or about June 14, 1924, and ordered to duty as public works officer of the Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., and 9th Naval District as relief of Comdr. Frederick H. Cooke, C.E.C., who has been ordered as engineer in chief of the Haitian government.

Orders have been issued detaching Lt. Charles R. Johnson, C.E.C., from duty in Virgin Islands upon the reporting of his relief, Lt. Allen Hoar, C.E.C., and ordering him to duty in the Bureau of Yards and Docks.

Lt. Carl H. Cotter, C.E.C., who was recently detached from duty as treaty engineer in Haiti, has reported for duty in the 3d Naval District and granted leave of absence. He visited the bureau on June 9, 1924. Upon expiration of leave of absence he will probably be ordered to duty at the navy yard, Puget Sound, Wash.

Ens. Harry A. Bolles, U.S.S., upon completion of his duties with the Navy Olympic Committee, will be assigned to post-graduate training in civil engineering at Post Graduate School, Annapolis, Md. Upon successful completion of this course he will be ordered to the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N.Y., for a two-year course leading to the degree of master civil engineer. Subsequent to graduation Ens. Bolles will be transferred to the Civil Engineer Corps.

WOMEN REBUKE PACIFISM

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S famous remark "to fool all of the people all of the time" is constantly being justified. The latest example is the failure of the pacifists to obtain an indorsement of their program at the bi-annual convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs held this week at Los Angeles, Calif.

In the years immediately following the war the pacifists steadily gained in power and were able, unfortunately, to do considerable damage to both our Army and Navy. They openly advocated and worked hard for disarmament and only too often successfully wielded the club of political annihilation over those who dared oppose them. They made rapid advances, particularly among the women in many of the churches. For a time they appeared to be having matters their own way.

However, they made the same mistake that all small noisy minorities who are well organized and, for the time being, well financed, frequently make. They failed to understand that it was war weariness, coupled with the necessity to re-establish themselves in civil life above all at a time of business depression and not pacifism, which prevented the majority of the men who were in the Service, their wives, sweethearts, sisters and mothers, from combating the plan to disarm us and leave us helpless in the midst of a disturbed and combative world.

The men who waited for long months after entering the Service before being equipped and armed and then, as a rule, received foreign-made armament, the business men who went through the difficulties, delays and exasperations, to say nothing, in many cases, financial loss incident to trying to transform our industry from a peace to a war basis, the women who realized that their anxieties incident to having their men at the front were prolonged weeks and months beyond what would have been necessary had we been prepared, are not going to be led by the sentimental fanatic who thinks he or she is a good citizen, nor the enemies of this country within our midst who preach that most fallacious and nationally dangerous doctrine that disarmament brings peace.

The action of the convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs in refusing to indorse the pacifist program and advocating in its place an adequate Army and Navy is an excellent proof of this, and all the more so because it is among the women that the pacifists up to the present have had their chief strength, and it is primarily upon the women that the pacifists have and are relying to put through their program.

MISSISSIPPI TURRET TRAGEDY SHOULD TEACH LESSON TO PACIFISTS

THE accident on the U.S.S. Mississippi which caused the loss of life and injury of a number of gallant officers and men though regrettable should benefit the Navy in the end by serving as a warning to the pacifists.

Reading the descriptions published in the daily press should convince the average man or woman who thinks at all of the complexity of modern naval armament. The difficulties experienced by the average reporter in attempting to describe what happened, and why, show the difficulties a layman, even trained observers as reporters are, must experience when they attempt to deal with naval matters.

It seems hardly possible that any citizen, male or female, could imagine for one moment that they could leave their ordinary peaceful occupations and quickly learn to handle even one turret, let alone the intricate fire control system which controls the fire of a battleship, to say nothing of the machinery which operates the ship and causes it to respond to the will of its commanding officer.

If this is true in peace, how much more true would it be in war when compelled to face the accurate fire of a well-trained enemy.

While it is too early to make a definite statement as to the cause of the accident, there is reason to believe that it was partially due to the fact that in order to obtain a longer range than is permissible with her present gun mounts, the Mississippi was heeled over by filling some of the tanks on the side opposite the target.

This heeling over with no compensating roll in the other direction as would be true in a seaway inevitably meant that all the loading apparatus had to operate from an awkward position. The board of inquiry, according to newspaper reports, has already brought out the fact that the air pressure used to blow from the gun bores the burning fragments and gases left after a discharge, was not sufficiently great enough to accomplish this.

The theory has been advanced that this failure to blow out the bore thoroughly was due to the unusual amount of pressure needed to effect this with the ship heeled over. If this be true, the gentlemen in Congress who have failed to permit our Navy to increase the elevations of its guns so that it could be on a parity with the navies of Great Britain, France and Japan when it comes to range should not be allowed to escape responsibility.

The professional soldier or sailor knows from experience that in war nothing but hard facts count. Ifs, and buts, and ands, and it might have been, cannot alter the results inevitably produced by the hard facts of battle.

The facts of the matter are that our ships in the cases of those which count the most in the battle line are outraged by the principal ships of other naval powers. Unless they can overcome this disparity in range but one thing could happen in combat and that is their destruction before they could get close enough to the enemy to hit him.

Knowing this, and having been denied the money necessary to change our gun mounts to permit of greater elevation in order to obtain the increased range, the Navy has been reduced to makeshift methods such as heeling the ship over.

In the early stages of the war the Allied armies lacked hand grenades. Suffering from the fire of the enemies hand grenades, and at a serious disadvantage inevitably the construction and use of improvised grenades was carried out. Due to the inevitable imperfections numerous accidents occurred. It was not surprising that this happened. It was more surprising that there were not more accidents. The responsibility clearly lay with those people who, unwilling to accept the lesson contained in the revival of the hand grenade as a weapon in the Russian-Japanese War, failed to see that the French and British armies had these weapons prior to the declaration of the war.

History is full of examples of determined people over-confident of their own powers who, failing to accept the lessons of the past, meet with disaster much to their surprise when war comes.

The Washington Arms Conference materially reduced our naval strength. Congress, through neglect, has allowed it to fall materially below the ratio laid down by that Conference. The facts were clearly brought out in the last days of Congress. The House passed a bill providing the funds necessary to remedy a number of these defects, but omitted the money needed to permit our ships to fire at ranges equal to those of other navies. The Senate killed the bill entirely. Therefore, nothing is being done to correct our many deficiencies.

The accident to the Mississippi should serve as a warning for, as regrettable as it is, and as sad as is the loss of life and the suffering of the injured, it is as nothing to the disaster which will overtake us if our fleet, deprived through penuriousness, politics, and pacifism of obvious necessities is compelled to face an enemy which outranges it, outscouts it, and outmaneuvers it in spite of the intelligence, hard work, and courage of the officers and men who man it.

SERVICE PUBLICATIONS

THE FREEDOM OF THE SEAS IN HISTORY, LAW AND POLITICS, by Pitman R. Potter, Ph.D., published by Longmans, Green and Company, New York and London, price $2.50, bound in cloth. This work is the result of a study by the author first begun in the autumn of 1917 at Harvard University. The writer, as a candidate for the degree of doctor of philosophy at that institution, presented to the faculty of arts and sciences, in the spring of 1918, a thesis entitled "The Development of the Doctrine of the Freedom of the Seas as an Aspect of International Maritime Jurisdiction." The thesis consisted of an analysis of the works of Grotius and Selden on "The Freedom of the Seas (Mare Liberum)," and "Maritime Dominion (Mare Clausum)," respectively, an examination of the materials used by Grotius and Selden, and a study of subsequent development of the question, including a brief notice of the then current status of the problem and its possible future. The present work represents a complete rewriting of that thesis, some rearrangement of its parts, a reduction of the amount of attention given to historical materials, a considerable expansion of the legal materials used and a great expansion of the amount of attention given to the political problems involved.

LEGAL DEPARTMENT

The following responses were made by Ansell and Bailey to inquiries submitted to the Legal Department:

(1) Where a wagon driven by a soldier in course of duty collides, through the fault or negligence of the driver, with another vehicle and injures one of its occupants, the United States is not responsible, because of the well established principle of law that the Government is not liable for the tortious or criminal acts of its officers, agents or servants.

(2) Where a civilian employee of the Army became indebted to a soldier by the purchase from the soldier of a bicycle for an agreed price and failure to make the payment as promised, there is no authority in the military establishment to stop the pay of such employee for the purpose of liquidating the indebtedness.

(3) The United States is not liable for compensation for services rendered by a civilian attorney as counsel for the accused in a court-martial proceeding.

(4) Notwithstanding the statutory requirement that all contracts with the War Department as well as some other departments must be reduced to writing, performance of any part of a contract not in writing as required validates the contract to the extent performed and pay under the contract is due upon such performance.

(5) Where a private contract provides that a vehicle shall be removed from a certain building within thirty days from date, time should be reckoned by excluding the day of the date.

(6) Under the Constitution Congress alone can provide for the sale or disposition of public property of every kind, and no officer or agent of the United States has any authority to dispose of any such property unless it be conferred expressly or by fair implication by some act of Congress.

COMPTROLLER GENERAL

RECENT DECISIONS

An enlisted man of the Navy discharged at the request of a member of his family who becomes dependent upon him during the term of his enlistment is considered as not discharged for his own convenience, and is entitled to travel allowance. (Banagan's case, May 31, 1924.)

An officer of the Navy may continue to receive the rental allowance after detachment while in the hospital and while on sick leave of absence for a period not exceeding six months, the period during which under the Regulations he could retain public quarters while on sick leave. After the expiration of such total period of six months' sick leave of absence should the officer re-enter the hospital he would not be entitled to rental allowance. (Kenny's case, May 28, 1924.)

An enlisted man is not entitled to the war service payment of $60 or to pay for any part of the period between date of his return to military control and discharge, where it appears that he deserted the Service in February, 1919, and was absent in desertion until Nov. 23, 1921, a date subsequent to the date he was entitled to discharge under the act of June 15, 1917; was apprehended Nov. 28, 1921; returned to military control Dec. 7, 1921; was tried and convicted of the offense of being absent without leave, and sentenced to be confined at hard labor for six months and to forfeit two-thirds of his pay per month for a like period, and was honorably discharged Aug. 11, 1922, Form 525 A.G.O., pursuant to Par. 4, Cir. 87, W.D., 1921, because of the termination of the emergency; not recommended for reenlistment. (Moffitt's case, May 29, 1924.)

A lieutenant (S.C.), U.S. Navy, is not entitled to count constructive service in determining his right to the base pay of the fourth pay period. (Maynard's case, June 2, 1924.)

Think It Over!

No. 36

You may divide the world into two classes of people—those who save wisely and those who spend foolishly. No man has an excuse for belonging to the latter group.

Consider the two! People who are reckless with money usually are likewise with other valuable treasures of living. For example, it is only natural that the spendthrift of money is a spendthrift of time, and his life is filled with empty moments. Whatever pride he takes in his attitude is false, and the thought that some day he must depend on others for his existence, should make him hesitate. Take the man who saves regularly. He probably gets as much fun from his thrift practices as the other fellow gets from his extravagance. He is a better man and a finer citizen.

The spender is a detriment to himself and to his nation. He does nothing to enrich his life or the lives of those about him, while on the other hand, the thrifty man is one of the nation's best assets. The question is—are you an asset or a liability to this great country?—Think it over!

When General Grant Sent Up a Balloon

SENDING up a scout balloon during the Civil War was a momentous event. They were used at times, however, especially around Richmond, while General McClellan had a balloon staff attached to his army. But the difficulty in transportation, and the fact that it took three hours to inflate one, limited their operations.

Today, captive balloons and aeroplanes are commonly used—and one of their most important adjuncts is such optical equipment as photographic lenses and binoculars. In supplying such equipment, for both Army and Navy, the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. has ever been the leader.

We are always at the service of the Government in developing new Optical Instruments.

G.O. 14, MAY 9, 1924, H.D.

Citations for Meritorious Conduct.—The following enlisted men are cited for meritorious conduct:

H. E. Mosher, Staff Sergt., 6th Pursuit Sqdn., Air Service. For meritorious conduct at Luke Field, H.T., March 27, 1924. He fearlessly plunged into a mass of wreckage and flames, resulting from the crash of a N.B.S.-1 airplane, in order to rescue therefrom an injured and helpless comrade. The highly commendable conduct of Staff Sergt. Mosher on this occasion affords an inspiring example of unflinching self-sacrifice and devotion to duty.

J. M. Torres, Pvt. 1st Cl., 65th Service Sqdn., Air Service. For meritorious conduct at Luke Field, H.T., March 27, 1924. Notwithstanding the fact that he was painfully burned in the crash of an airplane, which resulted in the death of two officers and two enlisted men, this soldier, who was the sole survivor of the crash, fearlessly returned to the wrecked airplane and, in disregard of his own safety participated in an attempt to rescue the other injured and helpless occupants of the airplane. The highly meritorious conduct of Pvt. Torres affords an inspiring example of courage, soldierly spirit and unselfish sacrifice.

The dread Pyorrhea begins with bleeding gums

PYORRHEA's infecting germs cause many ills. Medical science has proved this.

Many diseased conditions are now known to be the result of Pyorrhea germs that breed in pockets about the teeth. Rheumatism, anaemia, nervous disorders and other diseases have been traced in many cases to this Pyorrhea infection.

Don't let Pyorrhea work its wicked will on your body. Visit your dentist frequently for teeth and gum inspection.

And watch your gums yourself. Pyorrhea, which afflicts four out of five people over forty, begins with tender and bleeding gums; then the gums recede, the teeth decay, loosen and fall out, or must be extracted to rid the system of the poisons generated at their base.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress—if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums hard and healthy—the teeth white and clean. Start using it today. If gum shrinkage has set in use Forhan's according to directions and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

Lt. R. B. Hall assigned Philadelphia Pa., Navy Yard, and to Downs when in commission.

Ens. A. M. Martinson assigned Philadelphia, Pa., Navy Yard, and to Joutet when in commission.

Lt. Comdr. W. Williams assigned Morrill. Lt. Comdr. L. L. Bennett assigned Philadelphia, Pa., Navy Yard, and to Joutet when in commission.

Bten. (L) D. M. Small assigned Sturgeon Point Station as officer in charge.

COAST GUARD NOTES

Up to June 14 approximately 400 candidates for temporary commissions and 575 candidates for temporary warrants have been designated to take the examination to be held on June 16, 1924.

Proposals were opened on June 12 at Headquarters for the construction on the Pacific Coast of twenty-five 75-foot patrol boats. Bids were submitted by ten shipbuilders, and the prices quoted compare favorably with the East Coast bids. No awards have yet been made.

Below is a tentative schedule of the probable date of commissioning of the first lot of destroyers: Cassin, June 15; Joutet, June 15; Downes, July 1; Beale, July 15; Patterson, Aug. 1; Ammen, Aug. 15; Paulding, Sept. 1. The first section base to be established in the temporary enlargement program will be along the Florida coast in the vicinity of Miami. This base will operate as a unit of the Norfolk Division.

The Modoc played the H. M. Dockyard ball team on June 1, 1924, the score being 4 to 3 in favor of the Dockyard team. This was the first game the Modoc has played this season and the men showed good form.

Two games of baseball were played with the Algonac team by the Morrill's team, the Morrill losing both games with scores of 12 to 7 and 6 to 4. No opportunity is afforded at Detroit to develop the ship's talent, but it is hoped to find ground at the smaller towns on the station.

CANADIAN MOUNTED POLICE

The following is submitted by Comdr. W. J. Wheeler:

"The Tampa's association with the Northwest Mounted Police (now called Canadian Mounted Police) in His Majesty's Canadian Dockyard, Halifax, brings out some interesting exploits of this fine body in connection with prohibition work on the coast of the dry Province of Nova Scotia, work now of special interest to the Coast Guard.

Among the prizes reposing in the dockyard is the schooner Veda M. McKown, captured with eight men and a large cargo by a sergeant, a corporal and a private (constable) operating from a small dory nearly three miles off shore, in a very isolated location, on a dark night, July 3, 1923.

After the capture it was necessary to send one man ashore in the small dory to secure a tug, and the remaining two, heavily armed, guarded the prize for more than two days.

The same sergeant has a record since that date of nine single-handed captures, one of which involved 1,690 gallons of liquor.

On more than one occasion English baronets and nobles of other nationality (without their titles) have been found in the ranks of this wonderful body, attracted by the high standard of honor and the opportunity for 'doing things'.

Our duties are equally active and should equally appeal. Moreover, we are equally, and quite amply, clothed with authority of law for the duty assigned us."

NAVY NOTES

LT. COMDR. GEORGE E. BRANDT, U.S.N., delivered an alumni oration recently to the students of the Mississippi A. and M. College, Agricultural College, Miss., in which he emphasized the importance of good citizenship and national security.

The speaker pictured citizenship as personal responsibility for national welfare and told how the Army and Navy are the instruments with which the people safeguard the republic. Education, he declared, was the means of opening the eyes of the intelligent to the fact that they were the individual guardians of the nation and that the military establishments of the United States reflected the honor, virtue and patriotism of the people.

Lt. Comdr. Brandt scored pacifist movements in the colleges, churches and social societies of the country and closed with a plea for loyal and unwavering support of national institutions against the sentimental, detrimental propaganda antagonistic to the Government.

A FLAG DAY celebration was held at the Navy Department on June 14. Philip Walker of the Judge Advocate General's office was chairman. Music was furnished by the U.S. Navy band, and the program included an invocation by Capt. Evan W. Scott, Chief Chaplain, U.S.N.; "The American's Creed," by the assemblage, and an address by Curtis D. Wilbur, Secretary of the Navy. "The Star-Spangled Banner" was led by Mrs. Gertrude Lyon, Navy Allotment office.

THE total enlisted strength of the Navy on June 13 was 87,005, or an excess of 1,005 over its authorized figure. Since July 1, 1923, the Navy Department has obtained 23,499 first enlistments, but after deducting 641 due to underage and physical disability discharges, the net first enlistments number 22,858. During the week ending June 12, 1924, the Department obtained 441 first enlistments, 71 re-enlistments were secured, or a grand total of 512 for this period.

THE FINANCIAL DIGEST

This paper will be glad to furnish to its readers information on any brokerage house. A letter addressed to the Army and Navy Journal, 354 Fourth Avenue, New York City, will bring the information desired.

By Raymond V. Sykes

There are some signs that business has reached the nadir of its reaction and is beginning slowly to swing upward. The improvement is perhaps more psychological than physical, and brought about a more cheerful outlook. Warmer weather throughout the country has materially helped the retail trade, especially in clothing and wearing apparel.

The feebleness of the effort of the so-called radicals at the Republican National Convention, and the almost unanimous renomination of the President, has done much to discount the influence of Congressional blocs. Of course, the coming Presidential campaign may be slightly disturbing to business inasmuch as it will divert attention, but history does not reveal that national elections make a very deep impress when there are no great issues at stake, which is true at present.

The most outstanding feature of the entire situation at this time is the abundance of money. The reasons for such a plethora are the continued influx of gold and a slackened demand on the part of big business for expansion purposes. Commercial requirements, also, are light. Merchants have been operating for some time on a hand-to-mouth basis, and there is not a great deal of credit tied up in inventories or trade acceptances.

As a result of the large gold supply, heavy deposits and small volume of rediscounts, the New York and the Boston Federal Reserve Banks have cut their rediscount rate to 3½ per cent., and Cleveland and San Francisco to 4 per cent. The remaining eight district banks still hold to 4½ per cent., but Philadelphia, at least, is likely to drop to 4 per cent., or even to 3½ per cent. within a short time. Naturally the open market rate for money has dropped to levels below the Federal Reserve rediscount rate, and in New York there is an abundance of funds at 2 per cent. on call and 3 to 3½ per cent. for 60 to 90-day loans.

While it is true that the low quotations for money are largely a direct reflection of slower business, yet heart should be taken over the fact that credit is so plentiful. Money cannot long be offered at present prices without business men taking advantage of the rates and launching new enterprises, or resuming old operations. It is generally assumed that the future of the country is stable, and low money rates are an invitation to the farsighted to prepare for the coming recovery. Investment securities are affected automatically by changes in interest rates, and the current decline has been marked by unusual activity and strongly advancing prices in the bond market. Several Liberty Loans have gone to record high prices for all time and the entire list has advanced. First-grade preferred stocks, also, have been subject to the same influence. Speculative issues have been less affected, but are beginning to respond. There are not many speculators who can resist the temptation of 2 per cent. loans.

Another result likely to be achieved by cheap money is an end to the decline in commodity prices, and, very possibly, an advance. The last weekly index of Professor Irving Fisher showed a slight upturn for the first time in several months. While this may not be conclusive that a turn has come in commodity prices, a turn is close at hand. Indications of rising commodity prices will greatly stimulate buying, especially under present conditions when retail stocks generally are so low, and, of course, increased buying means greater industrial activity, more traffic for the railroads, increased production in the basic industries, and improvement all along the line.

The railroads have not reported their income for May, but April showed a return of 4.72 per cent. on tentative valuation, against 6.50 per cent. a year ago. The poorer showing was not unexpected in view of the fact that carloadings for April were considerably under those for the same month last year. By comparison, also, April, 1923, was considerably above normal in that business was bordering on inflation, and the peak of this movement was reached a few weeks later in May. Smaller coal shipments have been almost entirely responsible for the decline in gross revenues during April, 1924, and will probably have an effect on May earnings. However, this traffic is simply deferred and is not lost. Later in the year it must be made up. Congress adjourned without any extra session is probable this summer, the rails have clear sailing for the time being. Numerous consolidations are planned or are under way, and this is helpful to the market. On the whole, railroad stocks seem the best, as a group, for speculation, and such issues as Rock Island, Missouri Pacific common and preferred, the Erie, Missouri, Kansas & Texas preferred, Seaboard Air Line preferred, and St. Louis Southwestern common have the best possibilities. Among the dividend-paying rails Southern Pacific is one of the most attractive. The coppers, also, are in line for improvement, with Cerro de Pasco as one of the best.

SECRETARY OF WAR'S LETTER LAUDS M.T.C.A.

MR. ROY C. WARD, civilian aid to the Secretary of War for the 9th Corps Area, has received from the Secretary of War a letter of commendation for the splendid work done by the members of the Military Training Camps Association in the corps area. Secretary Weeks's letter follows:

"My dear Mr. Ward: Doubtless you have learned that the commanding general, 9th Corps Area, has been authorized to order 3,000 applicants to camps instead of 2,600. He was advised to this effect on May 22, after the receipt of your telegram of May 19 requesting that the increase be granted.

"Your interest in the final disposition of the applicants with a view to a 100 per cent. enrollment is consistent with the intensive and effective campaign for applications just completed in your corps area. You were the first to reach and pass the quota and according to the latest report we have on record, the greatest percentage of your quota.

"It gives me pleasure to express to you, and through you to the entire civilian body engaged in the activity, my appreciation for the great assistance you have rendered to the corps area commander and to the War Department in this very important work. Yours sincerely,

"(Signed) JOHN W. WEEKS,
"Secretary of War."

Maj. Gen. Charles G. Morton, commanding the 9th Corps Area, has also sent a letter of congratulation to all personnel connected with or engaged in procuring enrollment for the C.M.T.C.

CHICAGO R.O.A. MEETS

THE meeting of the Cook county chapter, Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, which was held at the Chicago Army-Navy Club on June 10, was featured by a lecture on "Defense Test Sept. 12, 1924," by Maj. J. P. Smith of G-3, 6th Corps, U.S.A.

The roster of the Cook county chapter being 3,600 Reserve officers, the chapter is entitled to seventy-two delegates and alternates to the state convention, which will be held a Springfield, Ill., on Sept. 20, Lt. Col. Noble B. Judah, F.A., O.R.C., announced.

R.O.T.C.

THE success which has been achieved in the San Francisco schools with the Junior R.O.T.C. was demonstrated in a recent review held in honor of Maj. W. S. Overton, U.S.A., retired, who was instrumental in establishing the units in the institutions. Thirteen hundred cadets of the San Francisco High Schools marched in a farewell review to Maj. Overton, who was presented with a testimonial of his command's esteem by Cadet Capt. Thomas A. Murphy, of Galileo High School.

The review was witnessed by numerous military and civic officials including Mayor Rolph J. M. Gwinn, superintendent of schools, and many high school principals.

THE Arsenal Technical High Schools of the Indianapolis R.O.T.C. unit, commanded by Lt. Col. George M. Lee, has again been designated by the War Department for the third successive year as an honor school. This school is in direct charge of Capt. Henry F. Schroeder, who is Col. Lee's assistant.

THE president of the Riverside, Calif., Chamber of Commerce, in a recent communication to 9th Corps Area headquarters, pledged the support and assistance of that organization to foster the Reserve Officers' Training Corps in the Riverside schools.

FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION MANEUVERS IN N.M.

MAJ. ADNA R. CHAFFEE, Gen. Staff, U.S.A., has an interesting article dealing with the maneuvers of the 1st Cavalry Division near Deming, N.M., September-October, 1923, in the issue of the Cavalry Journal for April, 1924. The major draws a number of valuable deductions from the maneuvers and says in conclusion:

"During the maneuvers interesting data and experience was obtained concerning many points of organization and equipment. The absurdity of organization of the present two-squadron Cavalry regiment was amply demonstrated.

"The opinion in the division that the automatic rifles, or machine rifles, should be organized as a troop in squadron instead of, as at present, a platoon in troop, was confirmed. They have a lesser mobility than the rifle troop. There is always time to disperse the platoons of a machine rifle troop for attachment to rifle troops in case of a dismounted attack or a detached mission requiring increased fire power. There is never time to assemble the scattered machine rifle platoons from several troops, under the present organization, to form the fire pivot, to support the remainder of a squadron in rapid mounted approach or mounted attack.

"For reasons of relative mobility, of better technical instruction, and for the better and quicker control of their fire in support of rapidly moving Cavalry, the opinion of the division was crystallized that Cavalry machine guns are better organized as brigade squadrons than as separate regimental troops.

"During a protracted period of operations replacements for Cavalry will be received from Army depots with much less certainty than replacements for Infantry. Cavalry units, particularly the regiment, must be strong enough initially to fight on several successive days, withstand losses, and still have enough left to call themselves organizations; otherwise the whole unit fades into overhaze.

"The organization of the advance echelon of division headquarters into a series of flexible, mobile groups, each supplementing the one in front as might be necessary in the situation, proved satisfactory. Battle headquarters must be kept extremely small, mobile and simple.

"During the maneuver period and, for the Fort Bliss columns, during the marches to and from maneuvers also, the personnel sections of the brigade and regimental 4th echelons were assembled at the rear echelon of the division and all functioned there under the division adjutant. Combat units were relieved from all papers except the morning report and the duty roster. It worked like a charm.

"The whole division is keen for the Phillips pack saddle for any kind of a Cavalry pack load. The machine gun squadron equipped with these saddles carried its full loads of guns and ammunition to Marfa, through the maneuvers, and on the return home. It had scarcely one rubbed back on arrival at its home station. The squadron equipped with aparejos came to Marfa with empty aparejos, carried its loads through the maneuvers, and returned with guns, ammunition and riggings in its wagons. A more convincing field test could not be asked. The Phillips pack saddle also carried, with equal success, radio, pioneer and demolition, medical, automatic rifle and troop pack loads.

"Pack radio equipment, as modified by a board of officers in the division prior to the maneuvers, was afforded a good test and demonstrated the soundness of the recommended changes, which lighten the loads and make them compact and easy riding. An experimental pack wire load for use of regiment or brigade proved very successful.

"The radio sets of division headquarters, SCR-130, carried in very light trucks, met every demand. This also was an experimental usage. The heavy radio tractors, articles of issue to Cavalry division and brigade headquarters, could barely make the marches on the main roads to Marfa. They cannot cross a light pontoon bridge. They have no place in a Cavalry division.

"A cut-under escort wagon did not find favor above the present type. The trailmobile, at present used in the division as a light wagon, is not satisfactory.

"A high-laced leather boot, tested out to replace the shoe and legging, seemed excellent for mounted soldiers.

"Several different types of automatic rifle packs, improvised on the McClellan saddle, are in use in the division. The 7th Cavalry, which carries the rifle and an ammunition container on the near side, balanced against two ammunition containers on the off side, with a spare-parts box laced in the seat of the saddle, has the best of these. The poorest is the type in which the rifle is carried, in two iron Y's, above the saddle. For the machine rifle, with its increased ammunition requirements, there is no doubt but that a special pack will be necessary. The Phillips pack saddle is indicated as the basis of this load.

"Supply functioned without hitch during the entire period.

"Observers were complimentary. The corps area commander expressed himself as pleased. All had points to make from which valuable lessons were drawn. The division, coming into its home stations with its officers and men sun-tanned and hard, sitting lightly and easily in their saddles, with its horses in good condition and its organization well knit, had every reason to be proud of its effort to round out and complete its training year."

WASHINGTON LETTER

panded instead of being suspended, as has been suggested from a number of sources. The Army has enlarged its schools and there is a feeling that the Navy should take steps in that direction.

Insistent recommendations from the commanders afloat are coming to the Navy Department for engineering, radio and fire control officers. The battleships are short of officers qualified for these classes of duty and lengthy memorandums have been submitted to the department for additional officers for these duties.

The Bureau of Navigation admits frankly that with the present distribution of officers above the rank of ensign there is a shortage on the battleships, the backbone of the fleet. It is admitted that the battleships should have at least one captain, one commander, six lieutenant commanders, fourteen lieutenants and ten lieutenants, junior grade, in addition to other officers. With the new activities on a battleship, resulting from radio communications, more elaborate fire control systems and more exacting engineering duties, it is admitted that the highest efficiency demands an increase above the complement for officers for capital ships that was made before the World War. The Bureau of Navigation admits this, but insists that there is still a greater shortage of officers on the shore stations and on the smaller ships. It is impossible, according to the view of the department, to increase the allotment for the battleships and at the same time take care of the small ships and shore stations.

The only relief that is suggested by the department is to assign lieutenants to duty which has been performed by officers of higher grades. The department insists that there should be a general advancement of the junior officers to higher stations on the battleships. The battleship, it is argued, should be a training ship for the younger officers at sea. The older officers usually assigned to battleships, it is stated, are well equipped as instructors for lieutenants and ensigns, and therefore the capital ships should be made, to a certain extent, schools of instruction for the younger officers.

The Bureau of Navigation declares that it is its policy, as far as possible, to distribute officers so that they shall serve their entire period at sea on one ship. It admits that it will be impossible to hold strictly to this policy on account of the lack of a reserve force of officers which could be used to take care of casualties on the battleship. At the same time, the bureau will disapprove all unnecessary transfers of officers from one ship to another.
